The Power of Opium It Stupefies Men, Makes War
The Oldest Alligator England's Worry
Current Events
—By Arthur Brisbane—

MAKERS OF AMMUNITION, whose prosperity depends on war, have been credited with starting various international rows. And according to Mr. Torala, representing Finland in the League of Nations, the makers of arms and munitions are still stirring up trouble.

He demands that the League investigate, in connection with the opium traffic, the shipment of arms into the Far East.

MOST INTERESTING is the charge, declared by Lord Cecil to be sound, that drug addicts are not alone back of China's traffic in opium.

Munitions men urge and finance the Chinese poppy culture and opium traffic, that the Chinese may have money to pay for the weapons they buy to blow off each other's heads.

That the fighting and the sale of weapons may continue not only the opium traffic, but the ambitions of the various Chinese brigand leaders are encouraged, and financed.

THAT'S A NICE picture of civilization. Christian nations using one part of their money to send missionaries to the Chinese, and another part of their money to stimulate the deadly opium traffic, that the heathen may be able to purchase weapons to kill each other.

CHRISTIANS, HOWEVER, have no monopoly of the profitable trade. Figures supplied by the League of Nations show that of all weapons shipped into China in two years Japan supplied 50 per cent.

Japan's motives are not necessarily as mean or mercenary as those of other nations.

Japan is now the great power in Asia, and the only Asiatic world power recognized as such by other nations.

The Chinese are as intelligent as the Japanese, and nearly ten times as numerous, with natural wealth a hundred times greater than that of Japan. If they were united, under sane leadership, the Chinese would control Asia and Japan would have as much chance against China as Connecticut would have against the rest of the United States.

JAPAN IS interested therefore in not having China too peaceful. Fighting in China means peace of mind in Japan.

The attitude of the Japanese Prince Regent, looking at the Chinese bandit leaders cutting each other's throats, is like that of Louis the Eleventh watching his nobles killing each other. "The longer they fight, the stronger they make me, as King of France." However, China is in no hurry.

THE INTELLIGENT colored caretaker of the animals on Mr. Reddington's alligator farm at Anastasia Island says, pointing to the oldest alligator covered with green moss: "That alligator is 900 years old. But they live to be 1800 years old. Yes, sir, that's the amount of time an alligator has got to do everything that he's got to do. I'd stir him up for you and let you see him bite a piece out of this stick, but he's taken to biting pieces out of the fence lately and I have to mend it."

THAT OLD ALLIGATOR was biting things four hundred and fifty years before Columbus came to this alligator country. China had established a civilization five thousand years before that. She may wake up one of these days, if prodded too much, and bite pieces out of the fence that Japan and Western Europe are building around her.

ENGLAND'S WORRY is about her putting Europe back on a business basis, with all countries trading, and England getting her share. While working at every task to insure her own safety, including the building of flying machines that will go five miles in one minute, England seeks to end the hatred and fear that separates France and Germany.

France lives in constant dread of German attack and Germany lives for the opportunity to wreak her bitter hatred on France. British statesmen feel there can be no such thing as peace at

DYNAMITE ICE JAMS TO SAVE MENACED HOMES ALONG RIVER

Flood warnings were issued along the Merrimack River cities and towns today when the breaking up of ice in tributaries added torrents of water to the main river, already swollen by three days heavy rainfall.

Officials of cities and mills located on the banks of the Merrimac are apprehensive over what may happen if that stream breaks through the coating of ice which has been weakened by the heavy downpour.

Ice in the Pemigewassett River broke up early today, turning that stream into a raging torrent. Twice the ice formed barriers across the river, but each time the tremendous pressure of the water broke them down. At Plymouth, Franklin, San

GIRL WHO ACCUSED TWO MEN MISSING

Brockton, Feb. 12.—Miss Beatrice Love, twenty-four years old, the attractive young woman who recently caused the arrest of two Brockton young men, who, she charged, lured her with a promise of a theatrical contract to the outskirts of the city and attacked her, has disappeared.

When the cases of Harold A. Guerin, twenty-five years old, of High street, and Charles J. Houlihan, 20, of East Milsson street, were called today the young woman was missing. Sergeant William S. Chandler, who has had charge of the case, inquired for her at the Hotel Belmont where she lived and was told she left there yesterday.

Sergeant Chandler told the court Miss Love told him yesterday she "couldn't live on air" and was going to leave town, but that he did not regard her statement seriously at the time.

Judge King refused to issue a capias for the girl's arrest, declaring that since she had committed no crime and was without funds to furnish bail he was unwilling to force her to stay in jail until next Tuesday if found in the meantime. He gave the police until that date to find her, when the case will be

TRAIL OF 'LONE WOLF' AGAIN LEADS WEST

With the failure of the latest flaw in the hunt for the Lone Wolf, the police today returned to an earlier theory that the bandeur bandit is a resident of Springfield or Worcester.

This theory is based on statements which he made to three of his women victims, and on other evidence that the police think is significant.

He told Bessie Kelley of No. 10 Museum road he had been operating in Boston only one month, and also spoke of Springfield and Worcester. On the night of January 25, when he tied up Agnes Prescott and Catherine Devoll, the bandit also spoke of those two cities. On leaving in the morning he said he intended to take a car at Park square for Worcester.

Police investigation revealed the Lone Wolf did taxi to Park square.

18 HUB 'CURBSTONE REALTORS' CAUGHT

Eighteen curbstone real estate dealers, taken in the periodical clean-up of Boston's open air and unofficial bourse in front of City Hall, are in Municipal Court today on the charge of obstructing the street.

The police claim the eighteen who fell into the hands of the raiding party, have been in the habit, for months, of congregating in front of City Hall and there conducting a general real estate business.

A crowd of hundreds of spectators gathered when Patrolmen Crowley, Kershaw, Daugherty and Morrison conducted the latest clean-up.

The men, according to the police, carry on a real estate business that runs into big figures, on the City

DROP YALE GRID STAR WHO WED SECRETLY

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 12.—Century Allen Milstead, former star Yale football tackle, member of all-American team in 1923, and a student at Yale College, was automatically dropped from the college when his marriage became known to college officials today.

A meeting of the faculty committee has been called for this afternoon to give Milstead an opportunity of explaining his violation of the rigid rule. His resignation at that time is expected.

Milstead married Miss Mildred Bechtel, Milford, Ct., society girl, after meeting her at a prom at a girl's school here.

136 DIE IN GERMAN MINING DISASTER

London, Feb. 12.—An agency dispatch from Berlin today says seventy-one bodies have been recovered from the Stein mine at Dortmund, in which an explosion of fire damp occurred.

It was officially stated, adds the message, that the death roll totals one hundred and thirty-six.

One hundred are missing. There appeared to be little hope of rescuing the entombed miners. The explosion caused the shafts to the underground galleries to collapse, blocking all exits.

SATURDAY NIGHT IS SET AS A DEADLINE FOR COLLINS RESCUE

Cave City, Feb 12 (I.N.S.)—On the fourteenth day of his imprisonment, rescue parties driving their way to Floyd Collins were about twelve feet from the level where engineers have calculated he is lying, according to an official bulletin.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 12 (A. P.).—A bulletin today by E. S. Posey, engineering representative of Governor Fields, gave 9 p. m. Saturday as the maximum time in which the shaft would reach the maximum depth to which it is to be driven to reach Floyd Collins.

"We appear to be close to the roof of the cave and have speeded up the excavation to the rate of ten feet in 24 hours," Posey said.

"There is a great possibility that any minute we may strike a cavern leading to Collins," said H. T. Carmichael. "On the other hand, we may find it necessary to go sixty-eight feet.

"If we go that far without penetrating a channel we will begin tunneling in search of Collins, because that is the maximum estimate of the depth of his prison chamber. I have been hoping since Tuesday to strike limestone."

He would make no definite estimate or statement when Collins will be extricated other than that I expect to accomplish the work by Sunday."

At 10 a. m. today Collins had been underground thirteen days, had not been fed for eight days and his voice was last heard a week ago.

BELIEVE HE LIVES.

Amplification tests across electric light wires leading down to him had convinced physicians here that breathing sounds were being transmitted by the jiggling of the carbon lamp on Collins' chest. Yesterday these tests failed to record any

Society Girl, 18, Is Bride of Stableman

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—Miss Waita Katherine Linforth, prominent in society and daughter of Walter H. Linforth, San Francisco attorney, was married here to William S. Threlkeld, stable manager for Irving H. Hosmer, Los Angeles banker.

The bride is eighteen and the groom forty.

Their common love of horses brought them together, it was said.

AMNESIA VICTIM MAY BE HARTFORD MAN

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 12.—Believing that the amnesia victim in the Atlantic City Hospital may be her missing husband, Mrs. John T. Carey of Retreat street, Hartford, Ct., has telegraphed the police that she is coming here in the hope of making the identification.

The man was picked up on Sunday evening. He was taken to the hospital and complained his memory was gone, but he thought his name was John T. Carey and his home was in Hartford.

WEST END BURGLAR WORE NO CLOTHING

Possibly there is a back-to-nature movement on in the ranks of Boston burglars. At any rate, the "Joe Knowles" of porch climbers, the first undressed second-story worker in the history of the city, was arrested today.

The capture came about when Leo Lena, a tailor, residing at No. 76 Green street, discovered the unmodest thief in one of his rooms.

"Police—er! Help! The—ees—e!" shouted Lena through an open window.

Patrolmen John Campbell and James Galvin of the Joy street station came on the run. They searched Lena's place, they searched the entire second floor, then they went to the top floor. There, in a vacant room, stood Boston's one and only "bathroom bandit."

"Ain't you ashamed of yourself, a big boy like you?" said one of the officers, reproving like.

Two officers found, 38, which the tailor claims as his, secreted beneath one of the bandits arms.

Then officers found that the thirty years old and lives in the West End. He was held in $10,000 bonds for a hearing next Thursday.

KLANSMEN OUSTED BY MEDFORD CHURCH

The Ku Klux Klan has been driven from the Universalist Church of Medford Hillside.

As the first official rebuff to the Klan the Board of Trustees voted to allow no more Klan meetings in the church.

This is the church which the Klan is accused of trying to "steal" by packing the congregation with Klan members and sympathizers, and resorting to other hidden methods resented by officials in charge of the twenty-three-year-old institution.

Announcement of the banning of further Klan meetings in the edifice was made today by Frederick W. Ford, a member of the board of trustees. Mr. Ford in his statment clearly indicated that the trustees realized that they had a fight on their hands and were ready to fight to the last ditch against it.

DEMANDS U. S. PROBE OF 'GAS' PRICE BOOST

Washington, Feb. 12 (I.N.S.).—An immediate investigation by the Federal Trade Commission into the recent "arbitrary and unwarranted increases" in the price of gasoline was demanded today in a resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator Trammell, Democrat, Florida.

The commission would be authorized to bring anti-trust proceedings against all gasoline companies involved in the increased prices if an investigation warranted this action.

The trade commission would be asked to Chicago, Feb. 12.—Effective tomorrow, the price of gasoline will be increased two cents a gallon throughout the eleven states served by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, Kerosene prices will advance one cent.

The increase will make the retail price of gas twenty-one cents a thing, but physicians and radio experts refused to admit that this would indicate he was dead. They believed only that the light had burned out, or fallen from its socket.

AIR DRAFT IN SHAFT RAISES HOPES OF RESCUE SQUAD AT CAVE

HOPEFUL OF REACHING FLOYD COLLINS SOON

The limestone roof of Collins' cavern was reached at the base of the tunnel today at the 45-foot stage.

At "any minute" the diggers expect to find a crevice or cavern which can be opened sufficiently for the rescuers to work their way down to Collins, pinioned fourteen days in a rock vise at the foot of Sand Cave.

The down draft in the rescue shaft became stronger, nerving the weary diggers to fresh efforts.

The return of the Western Normal football squad, excused from classes until the finish of the race against death, also heartened the diggers, although they all realize that possibly two days may elapse before they reach Collins unless fate points the way through an unexpected tunnel.

The bottom of the dirt and sandstone cap overlying the roof of the old cavern, which once filled the tiny Sand Cave Valley, was reached today when shelving limestone appeared with solid rock not far ahead.

More crevices began to appear, increasing the downdraft, but none was yet found which would indicate any sizable tunnel. The cheering development was the reaching of the crevice stratum, proving that a cavern was near at hand.

The return of the Western Normal football team, which had worked all day Monday, threw the rescue squads into a four-team race which is making the drift fly. Striving against the Normal Gridiron boys is a group of Louisville youngsters, composing another set of shifts.

Then there are two sets of veterans in the senior division, the Kyroe professional miners and Louisville & Nashville track workers, long used to excavations.

QUARTERS CRAMPED.

The feature of the rescue effort which worries the officials most is that only three men at a time can work in the bottom of the shaft, while if conditions would permit scores would be willing to work unceasingly.

The shifts have been cut to one-half hour, so that fresh men can keep the effort up to the topmost speed consistent with safety of the shaft walls.

Carmichael today prepared the rope slings which will be fastened around the diggers' shoulders soon to prevent them from falling into the cavern, should the bottom of the shaft suddenly give way.

The diamond point drill was prepared again for further explorations into the limestone at different places in the bottom of the shaft.

Shaft May Not Lead Direct to Collins

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The best of engineering skill has failed to determine just how close to Floyd Collins' prison the rescue shaft may strike, due to the tortuous winding of the original Sand Cave tunnel.

The shaft starts thirteen feet back from the mouth of Sand Cave, but its their calculations of the direction, distance and windings of the tunnel, the engineers were unable to map the tunnel down as far as Collins because of the cave-ins which sealed his prison in that direction.

Looking at Sand Cave from a short distance, the mouth lies in the bend of the horseshoe-shaped ravine, the bottom of which slants slightly down to the cave. The mouth of the shaft, then, is slightly higher than the mouth of the cave.

A steel tape stretched down to the impassable rock fall in Sand Cave measured 84 feet and the distance estimated from the descriptions of the early rescue parties.

HAIRPIN TURN.

For perhaps ten feet one can stand erect in the mouth of the cave, but a few feet further on is a perpendicular ten-foot drop. The tunnel then bends to the right, as one faces the mouth of the cave, sloping always downward and twisting in the manner of a corkscrew.

Then comes a hairpin turn to the left, still sloping down and at the bottom of this a clockwise loop. At the bottom of the loop is the first steep slant and a few feet further is a second slant where Collins reposes.

Apparently he was sliding down this second slant feet first when his foot dislodged the boulder which pins him, dirt and debris falling on top of the boulder.

He fits into this hole almost as tightly as a stopper in a bottle. It is only about eight inches high and slightly more than that wide, in the shape of an ellipse. It is a hole rather than a crevice.

The rescue shaft was designed to strike as closely behind Collins as calculations could bring it, but just whether the Sand Cave tunnel winds back the 13 feet from its mouth to bring it exactly under the shaft is the problem the engineers admit they cannot solve.

They are fairly certain that the shaft will not strike the tunnel ahead of Collins, placing them in the predicament of the early rescue parties, who could not pull out the human stopper without risking his life.

The chief hope of the engineers is that in the honeycomb section which they have just reached some crevice or tunnel will be located which will permit them to work their way behind Collins and extricate him. Whether his position is in front toward the cave mouth, or to either side of the tunnel, none of them can say.

LISTENING FOR COLLINS' HEART

Most dramatic is this scene at the entrance to the Kentucky cave in which Floyd Collins is imprisoned. Here are seen radio experts lying on the cold ground by the hour, listening in on their amplifying sets for heart beats of the trapped man in order to get assurance that he is still alive. They claim to have been successful in detecting the heart beats, although recently the wires went dead. (International News Reel Photo.)

KLAN OUSTED BY MEDFORD CHURCH

sidious attempts to undermine the religious society, one of the most successful in the suburbs of Boston.

PASTOR ACCUSED.

The pastor, the Rev. Charles E. Clarke, is charged with being affiliated with the Klan movement.

Trustee Ford declared with emphasis that the trustees did not propose to have the church turned into a "Klavern." Mr. Ford declined to discuss what transpired at the meeting of the board of trustees which was held last night.

When asked if he thought the fight was over, Mr. Ford replied:

"Of course not. We labor under no illusions. We understand perfectly the predicament in which we find ourselves and the conflict that lies ahead of us. Aside from any action the board may take you may rest assured that there will be no more Klan meetings in our church. From now on there will be no more side-stepping. In this a Universalist church or a klavern is the clear-cut issue and no question of finance will be allowed to cloud it, so far as I am concerned.

EFFECT ON FINANCES.

"Do ou think the affairs will have any effect on your treasury?"

"Undoubtedly. I expect that for a time the receipts will fall off, but it does seem to me that the people of this community whom we have served so long will rally for our support. It is not conceivable that they will permit us to go down to financial defeat for standing for the right against deceit and chicanery. A more perfect exhibition of the workings of the Klan never has been exposed. If the public can stand calmly by and watch its efforts to rush this church the community is in a bad way.

"We are about to hold our annual fair and we are persuaded that it will be successful nd demonstrate that our neighbors are with us.

"It has been stated that the trustees are divided.

"That is not true. They are unanimous in their attitude on this matter."

NEW TRAIL TO LONE WOLF FOLLOWED

but apparently changed his mind and took the 7 o'clock train to Worcester.

PAWNED WATCH FOR $1.

The fact that he pawned a watch for $1 is also considered significant by the authorities. This would indicate, they stated, that the man came from out of town.

The police admit that the failure of women victims to identify photographs of a suspect has left them without a clew to the identity of the bandit who has terrorised the Back Bay.

Because of his brutal attacks on women they believe he will eventually prove to be of foreign extraction, a theory somewhat borne out by the statements of the victims that the bandit's hands were covered with long, black hair, and that he was of unkempt appearance.

CHECK UP SUITES.

Despite the failure of clews, the activities of the police have not slackened, and a checkup is now being made of the Back Bay apartments in the belief that the marauder may occupy a suite in the district.

He has displayed considerable familiarity with apartment houses, particularly with those on Queensbury street, and the opinion has been advanced that he may prove to have been a former employe or workman who had access to the apartments.

In the meantime a suspicious character, picked up at Huntington avenue and Norway street, is being held at the Back Bay police station while his photographs are shown to the women victimized by the Lone Wolf.

BOY SERIOUSLY HURT SLIDING ON BANISTER

John Donovan, fifteen years old, of No. 18 Templeton street, Dorchester, fell on his head while sliding down banisters at No. 8 Elwin street, Dorchester, suffering a fracture of the skull and other injuries. He is at City Hospital, his name on the danger list.

REVERE FLOOD FORCES TRANSFER OF FUNERAL

Because an undertaker could not be found to take a hearse into the flooded area about Dunn road, Revere, funeral services for Mrs. Mildred Russell will be held from the Bulfinch Street Church, Boston. Mrs. Russell died of pneumonia at her home, No. 25 Dunn road. Water was about two feet deep today about the house.

MAINE SHIP'S OFFICER DROWNED AT BALTIMORE

Portland, Me., Feb. 12.—Cummings O. Martin, fifty-five, of No. 161 Cumberland avenue, first officer of the steamship Munalbro, was drowned off the port of Baltimore, Md., according to word received by relatives. Details of the accident are not known here.

Mr. Martin, a native of McKinley, this State, was master of a lobster smack in Portland harbor for many years.

TOWNS ALONG MERRIMACK FLOODED

cook and other New Hampshire cities and towns the situation is admittedly serious.

CITIES ARE IN DANGER.

Mill officials admit it is probable the ice in the Merrimack at Manchester will break up within the next ten hours unless conditions are radically changed.

Haverhill, Lowell and other Massachusetts cities would be endangered by a breaking up of the Merrimack.

At Colebrook, N. H., ice jams in the Mohawk River were dynamited to save 500 homes at the north end of the town, menaced when the stream overflowed its banks and flooded the entire valley.

For hours the countryside was shaken by the explosions. After the river was freed of the ice jams the water commenced to subside. Fifteen persons were taken from their homes, where they had been marooned, in boats.

At Manchester warnings were received that up-river tributaries had broken loose from their bonds of ice and that a serious rise in the main river might be expected. The Pemigewasset river is already ten feet over the dam at Plymouth.

ACT TO GUARD TOWNS.

Every precaution is being taken at Manchester to avert serious consequence if the ice in the river breaks up. Flash boards have been removed and sluiceways opened at the big mill dam.

Only once in the history of Manchester has the ice broken up at this season of the year. On that occasion one bridge was carried away and another practically demolished. Extensive damage was done to private property.

Serious flood conditions were also reported from the Connecticut river valley. At Lisbon, N. H., tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad are submerged from the overflow of the Ammonoosuc river, a tributary joining the Connecticut river at Woodsville, N. H.

FAMILIES MAROONED.

The families marooned in their homes at Colebrook, N. H., were those of Frank Marshal, John McLeod, Charles O. Stevens and Thomas Parker.

Only one ice jam now remains in this section of the river and that is two miles above the town. Volunteers are attacking it with explosives.

The heavy rains are blamed for loosening the ice, which collected and formed jams virtually blocking the river in its natural channel. Water was two feet deep in some of Colebrook's streets today.

Weather Forecaster G. A. Loveland today called off his promised snow storm and now offers his followers a "moderate" cold wave instead.

"There will be a sharp drop in temperature tonight and tomorrow, though the mercury will probably not reach an uncomfortably cold level, he said.

"Cloudy and much colder tonight and Friday; strong northwest winds, diminishing tomorrow," is the prediction. Snow flurries are probable in some parts of eastern Massachusetts and heavy snow will probably fall in northern New England, the forecaster stated.

No sub-zero temperatures were reported in the United States today.

CONNECTICUT RISING.

A three-foot rise within twenty-four hours was reported in the Connecticut River at Springfield. The stream was rising at the rate of an inch an hour at last reports.

At Northampton the Pleasant street bridge, over which the electric car line to Holyoke passes, is menaced by a rise in the Mill River.

One of the abutments of the bridge and the highway adjoining the structure have been undermined by the water backed up by a barrier of ice formed by ice thrown into the stream from the streets.

Trolley service has been diverted through Easthampton.

Plan to Dynamite River at Schenectady

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 12.—An ice jam in the Mohawk River, halfway between here and Cohoes, where it empties into the Hudson, has caused the water to rise fourteen feet above its normal level, flooding part of the southeastern section of this city, where the General Electric plants are located.

City officials planned to use dynamite to break a jam in the Mohawk. The bridge across the Mohawk at Aiplaus was said to be in danger and trolley traffic between Schenectady and Saratoga was halted.

As the Mohawk continued to rise at the rate of one foot an hour, it was feared the flood might do much damage in the city.

Floods Close Mills in Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, Feb. 13.—Five mills in Manayunk, in the Philadelphia section are closing today on account of menacing flood conditions of the Schuylkill river. The water remained stationary after rising two and one-half feet in the streets in Manayunk.

TODAY

peace or normal conditions in Europe while that lasts.

WHILE THIS COUNTRY was going through its violent fit of war sentimentality, distributing promises and billions abroad, the European plan was to have Uncle Sam guarantee France against German attack, pledging himself to send men and money to back up the guarantee on twenty-four hours' notice.

But since that time Woodrow Wilson has passed on to his reward, and this nation has at least partially recovered its senses. France and England realize that there isn't going to be any United States guaranteeing of anything in Europe, or any shipping of American soldiers to Europe for many years to come. Now the question confronting England is "How can France be made to feel safe, so that she will allow Europe to get back to a business basis without any definite British guarantee?"

WHILE STATESMEN puzzle their brains, the answer to their question may be found in the high powered airships that France and England are building. Gigantic armies and navies that cost hundreds of millions a year and necessary in old style wars are necessary no longer.

Her four thousand airships mean more to France in the way of safety than a million of her bravest men in the old-fashioned army. France can say to any nation "strike at me, and I shall destroy every one of your big cities within the week." And she could make good the threat.

And the cost of maintaining four thousand airships is less than the upkeep of one single army corps.

THIS COUNTRY should build and maintain ten thousand fighting airplanes useful in peace, paying their way if intelligently used. The total cost, under the worst conditions, would be less than that of four battleships, and such an air fleet would mean safety.

ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS discuss the war debts at least frankly. A Roman newspaper, The National Idea, says that Italy realized war debts simply don't exist. England will not dare insist on payment, knowing the debts ought not to be paid, since without France and Italy the Germans would have conquered England.

And Italy, of course, should not pay any war debts. For without Italy's neutrality in the beginning, and her active help later, Germany would undoubtedly have beaten France, England and Belgium. That last statement is true. Italy's position in regard to the war debts is the strongest.

When, however, European nations suggest, as they all do, that they saved the United States from destruction at the hands of Germany and that they therefore ought not to pay what they owe the United States the story is different. The Germans, who could not even cross the Channel to England, had about as much chance of invading this country as we should have of invading the planet Mars.

NOW, THAT FLYING machines, deadly gases and explosives have been perfected, now that Asia is only 60 hours and Paris only 20 hours by air from Washington, the story is different. Without an adequate air fleet this country is as defenseless as the Ruhr when France marched in. Germany and the United States are today the two countries without defense and that's dangerous for a nation as rich and tempting as this.

S-48 WILL HAVE TO BE REBUILT, SAY OFFICERS

Portsmouth, N. H., Feb. 12.—The Board of Survey which is examining the United States submarine S-48, which went aground at Little Harbor, Jan. 20, is finding that the craft is more badly damaged than was at first believed.

Practically all of the keel has been ripped off, and, in addition to her hull injury, one engine is thought to be badly wrecked. Navy men believe it will mean practically rebuilding the submarine and the opinion is that the department may junk the craft rather than spend the amount of money necessary to put her in condition again.

VICTIM OF FATE SHE DECREES FOR HUSBAND

Detroit, Feb. 12.—Victim of a fate intended for her husband, Mrs. Delsedia Lowry, twenty-seven, died last night. She was severely injured a week ago when burning gasoline which she had thrown on her husband's bed flared back, setting fire to her own clothing. A week ago, Mrs. Lowry charged Lowry with being interested in other women and in a fit of anger hurled a glass of gasoline on his bed, tossing a lighted match after it.

EX-SLAVES RECALL CIVIL WAR DAYS

Mrs. Louisa Green and Mrs. Fannie Banks, former slaves, now inmates of St. Monica's Home, Roxbury, thank the Great Emancipator for saving them from a life of hardship and misery.

EX-SLAVE, NOW 117, LAUDS LINCOLN

The spirit of the Great Emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, hovered today about three aged colored women in St. Monica's Home on Highland street, Roxbury.

At none of the many shrines where tribute was paid the memory of the Martyred President was there more impressive homage than that of the humble, silent adoration of those women.

All three once were slaves, and all were freed sixty-two years ago by the proclamation of the man whose birth, in a log cabin in Kentucky, was as humble as their own.

Fannie Banks' age is problematical, but it is a fact that before she was freed she was a wife for fourteen years, a widow and once again a wife.

Moreover, when word came to St. Monica's a year ago that Fannie's sister had died in Richmond those in charge of the home corresponded with the Richmond authorities. They learned that the sister lived to be ten years old and had told doctors and nurses that her sister Fannie in Boston was many years older.

If Fannie Banks is 117, Abraham Lincoln was not born when she first saw the light of day in a cabin on the plantation of James Early, in Green County, Virginia. But she still lives to bless Lincoln's memory, sixty years after his death.

Amanda Shepard is eighty-seven and Louisa Green is eighty-three. The latter was also on a Virginia plantation, that of Stephen Harper. After the Emancipation, she joined her father and mother, who belonged to another planter, and together they journeyed to Petersburg and later came to Boston.

"We didn't have no place to go, but we was free," she said.

Amanda Shepard was a slave at Maysville, Kentucky. She did weaving, spinning, cooking and farm work. In 1861, Captain Higbee, her master, sent her North to Waterville, Maine, with his son-in-law.

116TH BIRTHDAY OF LINCOLN OBSERVED

A score of celebrations by school, fraternal, social and patriotic organizations are being held throughout Greater Boston, today, in observance of the 116th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

One of the more elaborate observances was held in Chelsea at noon, when a memorial tablet, commemorating Lincoln's visit to that city on September 19, 1848, was unveiled and dedicated. The tablet is in the Salvation Army building in Chelsea square, formerly Gerrish hall, where Lincoln spoke at a Whig rally for the presidential ticket of Taylor and Fillmore, in 1848, and was presented to the city by the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce. The program was opened with selections by the U. S. navy yard band. Colonel W. A. McIntyre of the Salvation Army offered prayer.

Miss Helen Eisenberg, daughter of Samuel Eisenberg, chairman of the memorial committee, unveiled the tablet and Mayor Quigley accepted the gift in behalf of the city. Selections closed the program.

Boston's observance will be combined with the Washington's birthday celebration next Sunday evening in Symphony Hall, where motion pictures of Washington crossing the Delaware and Lincoln signing the emancipation proclamation, taken from the photoplays "Janice Meredith" and "Abraham Lincoln" will be shown. The oration will be by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas.

Other features of the exercises will be the reading of Washington and Lincoln speeches by high school pupils and a patriotic finale depicting "The Spirit of '76," "The Boys of '61" and "Your Flag and My Flag," with escorts of veterans of four wars.

BITTER CLASH AMONG LA FOLLETTE FOLLOWERS

Washington, Feb. 13 (I.N.S.).—A bitter fight has broken out among the followers of Senator Robert M. LaFollette in their efforts to establish a permanent third party, it was learned today.

The clash will be acted on the floor of the convention of the Conference for Progressive Political Action in Chicago a week from Saturday.

The Socialist party was invited and accepted.

Labor organizations will not go along with the new party if the Socialists are given representation, and may not go along under any conditions.

WOMAN STRUCK BY TAXI BADLY INJURED

Miss Martha Machallatis, fifty years old, of No. 5 Burrell place, South Boston, was probably fatally injured today when struck by a taxicab while attempting to board an Elevated car at East Broadway and I street. She was taken to the Carney Hospital, suffering from multiple body injuries and a possible fractured skull. Harold R. McNealey of No. 31 Codman street, Dorchester, was operating the taxicab.

SHOT BY WIFE WHILE HUNTING FOR RATS

Chicago, Feb. 13. — George A. Hutter, wealthy bank official, was in a hospital here today with a bullet from his son's rifle near his heart. He was shot, he said, when Mrs. Hutter dropped the rifle as they were climbing the stairs from the basement of their home after he had been shooting at rats.

MISSING MARY BURKE SEEN IN CAMBRIDGE

Police investigators probing the second strange disappearance of fifteen-year-old Mary Burke, daughter of a Boston detective, today concentrated their search in the vicinity of Pearl street, Cambridge.

The girl was seen on Peery street on Monday, twenty-four hours after her disappearance from her Back Bay home, by Mrs. Margaret Ceadgreen, of No. 9 Decatur street, Cambridge.

Learning of Miss Burke's absence from home, through a photograph and story in the Boston Evening American, Mrs. Ceadergreen recalled seeing the girl and notified the girl's mother by telephone.

The theory that Mary Burke is being detained against her will in a house in that vicinity is still held by the police. According to Mrs. Ceadergreen, however, Miss Burke was idling on Pearl street, and appeared depressed. In an answer to a question, she told Mrs. Ceadergreen she was looking for work. The girl was alone.

A peculiar feature of the case is that when Miss Burke disappeared a few months ago, she was found in the Pearl street district, after being recognized as the original of published photographs by Mrs. Julia Lyons, mother of Mrs. Ceadergreen.

Mary is the daughter of P. J. Burke, No. 299 Newbury street, Back Bay.

Will Bar Co-Eds With Short Skirts

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 12.—Co-eds of Union College were given four days in which to abandon short skirts, low necked dresses, rouge and lipsticks, and adopt attire specified by the president, W. W. Prescott, in an ultimatum issued at a meeting "for girls only."

President Prescott prescribed skirts not more than nine inches from the ground, elbow length sleeves, closely fitting collars and rougeless faces.

Girls who fail to comply with the ruling cannot attend classes.

OPERA STAR CRIES 'HE'S MEAN TO ME'

New York, Feb. 12.—While rumors of an artistic feud between Maria Jeritza, Viennese prima donna, and Benjamin Gigli, Italian tenor, are denied at the Metropolitan Opera House, operagoers are discussing incidents of recent performances of "La Tosca" and "Fedora," in which they appeared.

Tears by the soprano and unusually violent acting by both singers in some of the scenes in which they played together in the last performances of the two operas are the particular subjects of comment. The last occasion was Tuesday night when they sang in a benefit performance of "Tosca."

When the performances had come to a close and the curtain was raised for the first curtain call, Gigli appeared alone. After an embarrassed bow he disappeared and did not return.

The audience continued to cheer. The curtain rose twice but Jeritza did not show herself. The applause grew more insistent. Ten minutes passed and at last Jeritza, weeping and excited, came before the curtain as if she had been shoved. Through her tears she tried to explain to the audience.

"He's mean to me," was all that was audible. The audience was left to wonder to whom she referred.

Baron von Popper, Jeritza's husband, said after the "La Tosca" performance that his wife had been "deeply offended," but he declined to specify.

EXPOSER OF DR. COOK IS DUPE OF SWAMI

New York, Feb. 12.—A weird tale that Dr. Herschel C. Parker, former professor of physics at Columbia University, who proved that Dr. Frederick A. Cook was a faker on his claims of having climbed Mt. McKinley, has been hypnotized by a Swami and used to further anti-British propaganda in India, has been told in court here.

The story was told at the hearing of the divorce action brought by Mrs. Evelyn Naegele Parker. Mrs. Parker said that her husband had been missing since 1919, that she had written his clubs and colleagues and made every effort to trace him but without success.

PHONE CALLS.

Robert Seelay, attorney for Mrs. Parker, said that he had received mysterious telephone calls from an unidentified woman who informed him, with considerable circumstance, that Prof. Parker had been hypnotized by a Hindu named Swami Hadedandan, who had taken him to India.

In an action for separation in 1919, Mrs. Parker said that her husband, while climbing Mt. McKinley and other mountains, had contracted the habit of drinking whiskey and continued to over-indulge after his return.

On the last occasion that she saw her husband he said, according to Mrs. Parker "I am tired of looking after my wife and family. A man with my genius owes himself to mankind in general and cannot be tied down by routine."

EXPOSED DR. COOK.

His lawyer said that two possibilities were that Professor Parker was living somewhere on charity from friends who had known him in his prime or that he was in an institution for insane.

Dr. Parker was one of the principal figures in the Dr. Cook controversy, proving him an impostor.

CALLS DRUM'S AIR DEFENCE STORY 'ROT'

Witness Agrees With Mitchell That Anti-Aircraft Guns Are Practically Useless

Washington, Feb. 12 (I.N.S.)—Gen. Hugh Drum, whose defense of the methods of the Army air service drew the wrath of Brigadier General William Mitchell and led to the row over military aeronautics, was subjected to another attack today before the House investigating committee.

William J. Schauffler of Washington, who commanded an aerial observation group during the World War, described as "absolute rot" General Drum's statement that he could successfully defend the national capital with 12 anti-aircraft guns.

Anti-aircraft guns, Schauffler said, agreeing with Mitchell, are useless except as a means of destroying the morale of a new flier. Mitchell had previously told the committee that to prove the ineffectiveness of the guns he would go aloft and let them shoot at him.

General Mitchell was scheduled to come before the committee again to answer charges of naval officers that he failed to obey orders during the bombing off the Virginia Capes in 1921. Captain Alfred W. Johnson of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics has charged Mitchell with "insubordination."

Captain L. P. Kaftin, another former army flier, testified that anti-aircraft guns were effective against a bombing attack, but said that the best defense was a large air force.

COOLIDGE TOLD WARREN HAS NO CHANCE

Plans to Postpone Nomination of New Attorney-General Until After March 4

Washington, Feb. 12.—Administration leaders will seek to prevent action at this session of the Senate on the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to be Attorney-General.

That was disclosed today after Chairman Cummins of the judiciary committee had frankly informed President Coolidge of the extent to which opposition has developed.

If the postponement plan is successful, the President can resubmit the nomination to a special session of the new Senate to be called March 4 to act on executive business.

The first effort will be to keep the nomination in the judiciary committee, to which it was referred a month ago. Some of the leading opponents to confirmation, however, say they will make every effort to force the issue to the floor.

While none of the active opponents of Mr. Warrens nomination will pass from the Senate with the closing of the session, the Republican organization will gain several seats March 4, drawing from both the Democratic and the insurgents.

Fina laction on the nomination of William E. Humphrey to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission was postponed by the Senate interstate commerce committee today until next Monday, after Mr. Humphrey again had appeared before the committee for questioning at a two-hour session.

ACTOR SHOOTS ANOTHER WITH "PROP" REVOLVER

New York, Feb. 12.—Clifton Self, an actor, was accidentally shot and wounded on the stage of Wallack's Theatre here by Edward Garvie, another actor, during the performance.

In the first act of the play Garvie uses a pistol to threaten two characters. Garvie was unable to find his pistol and went to the property box for another. He picked up an old weapon and did not look to see if it were loaded. He was pointing it at Self, who had just backed from the stage into the wings, when he pulled the trigger.

Junior Supper Dance on Crowded Social Calendar

International Newsreel Photograph.

A care-free group on the sands at Miami Beach. Frederick K. Church, Jr., Russell Codman, Jr., William K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Yuille Sturgis and Muriel Vanderbilt compose this cosmopolitan smart set representative of Boston and Gotham elect.

By Betty Alden

THE CROWDED CALENDAR of frivolous affairs interesting the younger fashionable set carries on Friday another of the series of Junior Supper Dances, at the Copley-Plaza as usual and with a number of important supper parties already arranged.

MRS. HENRY HARDWICK FAXON (Edith Bremer) has a table and will be hostess for a group of fourteen. Mrs. Faxon is eldest of the trio of S. Parker Bremer girls, and her marriage a year or more ago was an outstanding function of the season.

THE YOUNGER daughters, Mabis and Ruth Bremer, just now completing the near-to-the-last lap of their journey round the world, are at some Mediterranean port awaiting the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Bremer, Sr., who are on the high seas eastward bound, aboard the Conte Russo, sailing from New York recently.

THE WORLD-GIRDLING trip for Ruth, the younger daughters followed Ruth Bremer's first Winter out. She was the centre of endless entertaining at that time, both at the Bremer town house in Marlboro street—No. 13—and at the homes of her countless friends.

ROSAMOND BORLAND of Boston and New York, this Winter serving on the junior committee for the supper dances, is a conspicuous figure in the social mase. She is a tall, distinguished girl, with a penchant for the brilliant colors, rose and coral and deep reds, for dance frocks.

AT THE DANCE for Katharine Hobson at the Somerset Hotel on Tuesday Miss Borland wore a gayly tinted frock of rose-red, a chiffon, one of the vivid colors that helped make the ballroom of the hotel such a sparkling scene.

SHE IS ALSO A supper hostess for Friday night's Junior dance. She has reservations for ten. Katharine Cunningham Gray, who came out last Winter, is entertaining eight and Mrs. Charles T. Hubbard ten.

Home from Vassar to Be Hostess

VIRGINIA PARKER, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Parker, comes home from Vassar to be hostess for a group of a dozen or so young people.

MISS PARKER, with a number of other year-out girls elected to follow a college career after an extremely festive first Winter, and chose for her Alma Mater the seat of learning up on the Hudson.

HER YOUNGER sister, Claire Parker, made her bow this season. Both the girls inherit the rich, dark beauty which distinguished their mother and her sisters, Mrs. Jasper Whiting and Mrs. James Lovell Little.

ELIZABETH STACKPOLE, daughter of the J. Lewis Stackpoles, is a hostess, and will surround herself with twelve youthful friends. Alexander Mellwain has commandeered a table for eight.

SENOR IGNACIO ZULOAGA, whose name and splendid works of art are on everyone's tongue, left town yesterday afternoon after a busy round of entertaining intermersed with visits to artistic shrines here and there about the city.

YESTERDAY T. Jefferson Coolidge and Senor Zuloaga sped up to the Art Museum for a brief stop, and then dashed downtown again to the Somerset Club for the luncheon of some forty notables at noon.

MANY OF THOSE in the reception to the artist at the Vose Galleries were bidden to the Somerset Club luncheon, notably Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer.

ZULOAGA and his all-too-brief visit offer gay reading. The Governor's luncheon, with its stately setting in the enormous dining room of the Beacon street house, the table laden with gold plate, set the festive ball a-rolling as everyone knows.

MORE than six hundred personages of society, the arts and letters thronged the Vose Galleries, where the artist was himself the lion of the afternoon on Tuesday.

THE Gallery offers the finest setting for such brilliantly colored and dashingly executed paintings as Zuloaga's—with its hangings of smoke-gray velvet. And the artist was eloquent in his appreciation of the care and discrimination shown in the arrangement of the works.

EN PASSANT, there is also hung permanently in the Vose Galleries the first and only etching executed by the Spanish artist, depicting his wife and sisters. He was much delighted to see it there, and immediately added his dashing signature as a memento of the occasion.

DAPPER DON TO QUIT U. S. AND GO STRAIGHT

New York, Feb. 12.—Although he is wanted by the police in connection with a half a dozen crimes, "Dapper Don" Collins today is preparing, unmolested, to return to Paris. The police expect that he will be accompanied by Mrs. Helen Marie Patterson Heyworth, his fiancee, who followed him here from Paris when he was extradited last year to serve eight months for larceny.

The treaty between France and the United States under which he was extradited saved Collins from the net of the law when he was released from the penitentiary. The terms of the treaty give him a reasonable time in which to return to the country where he sought asylum after skipping bail after his conviction for larceny in 1920. Although he was arrested upon his release yesterday, the district attorney ordered that he be released.

"I must be going," Collins told the district attorney. "I've got some money in France waiting for me. I'm going straight."

CONCERT PROCEEDS TO AID LYNN NEWSBOYS

An exceedingly attractive concert program is to be given next Tuesday night at the Lynn Women's Club for the benefit of the "Knot Hole Gang" activities of the Roosevelt Newsboys' Association in Lynn. A feature of the program will be the appearance of thirteen-year-old Joseph Curtin of 47 Workshop, Harvard University. Despite his extreme youth, the boy has played eleven different characters in as many plays at the famous institution created by Professor Baker at Cambridge.

Herbert Hooper of Trinity Church choir, Boston, regarded as the premier boy organist of New England, will also appear, together with other juvenile entertainers. The celebrated Lotus quartet will sing and Margaret Millea Henry, soprano, will appear with Lucy Dennett, violinist, and Evelyn Hathaway, pianist.

Leipsic, Germany, Feb. 12.—A record-breaking attendance is expected at the Leipsic Fair, opening March 1, according to figures compiled by the transportation Department. From America almost 200 visitors are coming on the Aquitania, due at Cherbourg, February 27. Another American delegation is expected on the Deutchland, February 27.

Headquarters for the Americans has been provided at the "Hermonik," a Leipsic club. Interest of American visitors will centre on machinery and technology exhibits.

BRITAIN READY AGAIN FOR GOLD STANDARD

London, Feb. 12.—Great Britain will revert to the gold standard at the earliest possible moment, Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons today. The Right Hon. Montagus Collet Norman, governor of the Bank of England, returned recently from the United States after conferring with New York financiers.

British opponents declared the gold standard would make Great Britain subservient to the United States because of America having control of the world supply of gold.

HUB FIRE CHIEF PRAISES HERO MEDALS

Boston Evening American's Plan Stimulant to Good Work, Says Sennott

Fire Chief Daniel F. Sennott, who for forty-two years has seen and shared in the acts of heroism of Boston fire men, today warmly praised the Boston Evening American's idea of rewarding two fire fighters a year with diamond medals for deserving service, and $100 to the wife, mother, sister or other woman kin of each of them.

Chief Sennott.

"Boston has the greatest fire fighting force of men in the world," said Chief Sennott. "From the black-shirted private to the white-collared officer they are firemen.

"I am greatly pleased to see that some recognition is at last to be made of the many acts of heroism and valor that are performed, I might say daily, by the members of the fire department.

PERILS NOT RECOGNIZED.

"The interest that the Boston Evening American has always shown to the members of the rank and file of the department is a known fact and the presentation of diamond medals semi-annually for deeds of heroism is one great way toward giving Boston's fearless fire fighters the proper recognition.

"The public in general does not realize the perils of a fireman. A woman is rescued here; a child is saved at another place; life is risked in a smoke-filled chamber in still another locality. Indeed, there are 101 dangerous situations in which a fireman is bound to place himself, at a one-alarm blaze as well as at fires of much larger proportions.

STIMULANT TO WORK.

"This guardian of public safety, the fireman is surely that receives merely a passing note on the records of the department. He is human nevertheless. Yet he shuns publicity. He is a fireman.

"Now that the Boston Evening American has announced that a hero's medal is to be presented, I am sure it will have a stimulating effect on the entire fighting force of the city.

"The idea is a splendid one for it recognizes merit, manhood and the bravery that the men of the fire department are made up of.

World Made Better by Acts Like This!

Though it may be the opinion of many that chauffeurs are callous, discourteous and "hard-boiled," here is an instance that goes to prove that in every walk in life there are open-hearted men and women who are not speeding along too heedlessly to do a little kindness now and then.

Mrs. S. O. H. of Forest street, Medford, writes to The Boston Evening American in praise of a chauffeur who, while driving his truck in a crowded business section of Medford, noticed two women with baby carriages crossing the street. The chauffeur immediately stopped his truck upon seeing the women confused by the traffic and offered to help them across the street.

Mrs. S. O. H. has cheerfully submitted the number of the truck and the name of the firm which employs this driver, who is not too busy to render a kindness. The number of the truck is H-5855, and it is owned by Summerfield Company, 727 Washington street, Boston.

If your grocer, or your letter carrier, or the policeman whose beat is near your home—no matter who—does some great or little kindness which is not a part of his ordinary routine, write about it to the City Editor of The Boston Evening American, that those who employ that good citizen may know his worth and that he may be credited for his good act; but

DON'T SEND KNOCKS.

FRANCE TO DELAY DEBT PAYMENTS TO BRITAIN

Paris, Feb. 12.—France will not settle her debt to England unless she has a clear prior understanding on the same subject with America, it was intimated on government authority today.

Premier Herriot's reluctance to accept the invitation of Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill to a parley in London is explained by the fact that he does not wish to bind France to any extra budgetary payments without knowing the terms on which America would be disposed to agree to a settlement. England's contention that France should pay an annual sum in excess of her Dawes payments is scouted here by officials who pointed out that the French budget showed a 2,000,000,000 francs deficit last year and no further charges could be considered until the devastation area is fully repaired and the interior debt consolidated.

BAY STATE TO RAISE CATTLE FOR MARKET

Commissioner Gilbert Guldes Reviews Revival of Industry in Connecticut Valley

The feeding of beeves for market is to become an important adjunct to the business of the tobacco growers of the Connecticut Valley.

A scarcity of the right kind of fertilizer led the growers to take this important step. Commercial fertilizers, it was found, failed to keep up the quality of the tobacco as well as the yield.

Under the State Department of Agriculture, S. R. Morrison, an expert beef feeder, is co-operating with the growers in their new venture, and making a survey of fodder conditions in the valley.

ASSOCIATION FORMED.

Commissioner Gilbert has had two conferences with the growers which has resulted in the formation of an organization known as the Eastern Beef Producers' Association.

The plan of the association, according to the commissioner, is to buy in animals around fifteen months' old, in the Fall, and to feed them for from ninety to one hundred and thirty days. The animals are then to be sold for beef in a market now being created.

"Mush room growth in the new industry is to be avoided," the commissioner says. "What is wanted is a slow, steady growth."

An important part of the plan is the developing of the right kind of stock, good dairy animals being unsuitable. Encouragement will be given breeders to develop feeders of the heavy beef type. The commissioner says this can be accomplished through the introduction of blooded sires.

ADOPT NEW SLOGAN.

A partial solution of the feed problem is being found in pressed cotton seed meal, formerly used in the valley and in the South for fertilizer purposes.

"In addition to making an excellent fodder," the commissioner said, "the cotton seed meal after it has retains about eighty per cent. of its original fertilizer value."

"New England beef for New England people," is a slogan being considered by the association.

VISUALIZE N. Y. FORECAST OF 100,000,000 YEARS AGO

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12.—The history of New York State was turned back 100,000,000 years for a little group of distinguished geologists and State officials in the museum of the New York State Education Building here today to witness the formal opening of a restoration of forest of the Middle Devonian period, reconstructed from fossil remains of trees uncovered at Gilboa, N. Y. The visitors were able to visualize the scene which might have been greeted them 100,000,000 years ago along any shore of the great Inland sea which overspread what is now the major portion of the Mohawk River Valley of New York State. The exhibition will be opened to the public tomorrow.

STAR'S SONGS CHEER WOUNDED 'VET'

Annette Margules, of the "White Cargo" company, aided by "Jim" Gallagher's Checker Inn Orchestra, brought happiness to the veterans at Veterans' Bureau Hospital 44 in Roxbury, when they appeared in The Boston Evening American concert for the wounded men.

Talented Annette Margules of the "White Cargo" company, playing at the Selwyn Theatre, and "Jim" Gallagher's famous Checker Inn orchestra made Lincoln's birthday a memorable occasion for the World War "vets" at Veterans' Bureau Hospital 44, in West Roxbury.

The entertainment was arranged through the Boston Evening American.

Miss Margules, though now a dramatic actress of the first class, was once in vaudeville and she entertained the wounded veterans with songs that made a hit with her vaudeville circuit audiences.

The Checker Inn orchestra thrilled the boys to their finger tips with the latest jazz.

Dependent largely on movies and a single radio loud-speaker, for their entertainment at the hospital, the veterans made the rafters of the Red Cross but quiver with applause for the artists.

In a previous entertainment arranged by the American, several stars of the Chicago Opera Company sang operatic arias and popular songs for the West Roxbury veterans.

In "White Cargo," Miss Margules, a Roumanian by birth, plays the only female part, that of a fascinating, brunette native, in West Africa. The story concerns her and four Englishmen, one of whom, a newcomer to the dark continent, charmed by the dusky and alluring form and marries her.

HINT MARGERY 'SHOWED UP' SAVANTS

Has Margery, wife of Dr. La Rol G. Crandon, prominent Boston surgeon, been posing as a spiritualistic medium with the sole purpose of "showing up" the scientific men of the country who are dabbling in psychic research?

This is the question disturbing the scientific world, as a result of the report of the committee of the Scientific American experts just made public, which brands Margery as a trickster of uncommon cleverness.

Of the committee of five men who observed Margery at many seances, four declare the woman is without spiritualistic powers and is, therefore, not entitled to the Scientific American's prize of $5,000 offered to any one producing bona fide spirit manifestations.

BRANDED AS FAKE.

One of the scientists, Hereward Carrington, dissents from the report of his colleagues and declares that he believes Mrs. Crandon really possessed the power to communicate with the spirit world.

The others on the committee, Dr. William McDougall of Harvard, Dr. Morton Prince, Daniel F. Comstock and the magician, Harry Houdini, refused to accept the "evidence."

The possibility that Dr. Crandon and his wife deliberately set up a plan to expose the gullibility of scientific men, is strongly hinted at in the report of the scientists.

The separate report of Dr. McDougall, professor of psychology at Harvard, is enlightening. Dr. McDougall says in part:

"As long ago as November, 1923, when I had enjoyed only a few sittings, I wrote Margery's husband, stating frankly that I was inclined to regard all the phenomena I had observed as produced by normal means, possibly with the admirable design of testing and exposing the gullibility of scientific men who ventured to dabble in the field of psychic research.

COMMITTEE REPORT.

"Since that date I have taken part in three series of sittings, eagerly looking for evidence of supernormal phenomena and doing my best to keep my mind open to such evidence. During this period the inclination described above has grown steadily stronger, in the main, in spite of some minor fluctuations, and now has become well-nigh irresistible."

"We have observed phenomena, the method of production of which we cannot in every case claim to have discovered. But we have observed no phenomena of which we can assert that they could not have been produced by normal means, although we have looked for such phenomena patiently and with open minds."

Use Sage Tea when Gray hairs appear

ALMOST everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SISTER GIVES BABY POISON BY MISTAKE

A three-month-old baby is in a serious condition at the East Boston Relief Hospital as the result of being fed poison instead of milk by a sister, also a child.

The baby is Lorraine Flynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Flynn of No. 186 Bennington street.

The baby was crying in its crib when the other child, thinking the infant hungry, gave it the bottle containing the poison, under the impression the white fluid in the bottle was milk.

The mother discovered the child's condition and summoned help, the child meanwhile lapsing into unconsciousness. At the hospital it is said, the baby has an excellent chance of recovery.

CALLS RIOT VICTIMS HEROES OF CHURCH

Marseilles, ef'b. 12.—Bishop Champavier has addressed a letter to members of his diocese commenting on the rioting here Monday night when two persons were killed and many injured. The disturbance followed an attempt of Communists to break up a meeting of the newly organized Catholic party. Referring to the two men who lost their lives, the letter says: "The church still has her heroes."

YOUNG BANDIT BATTLES FOUR POLICEMEN

After a strenuous battle with four policemen in his room in Beacon Chambers on Myrtle street today, Chester Sheridan, eighteen, was arrested for the holdup and robbery in the store of Horace Partridge Company, No. 49 Franklin street, last Thursday night.

Despite that one of the policemen pressed a revolver against his stomach, Sheridan continued to fight, and was only subdued when the officers beat his head against a wall.

According to Captain Perley Skillings of Division 2, Sheridan, who was recently released from Deer Island, confessed to the Partridge robbery and holding up the bookkeeper, Daniel Sheehan, of No. 12 Grove street, Arlington. Sheehan, who was robbed of a watch and chain and sixty cents, identified Sheridan as the holdup man, the police say.

Eleven revolvers, two of which led to the arrest of Sheridan, nine jack knives, six cameras and a quantity of wearing apparel were stolen from the sporting goods store.

Special Officer Holmes of the Joy street station discovered two of the stolen revolvers in a shoe shine parlor on Cambridge street. In a short time Sheridan's identity was established, and his room located.

Today Sergeant Gilman, with Officers Boyle and Adams of Station 3, and Special Officer Holmes, went to the room and broke down the door. They found Sheridan in bed, and he refused to get up. Boyle pressed a revolver against Sheridan's stomach, but the alleged bandit struck the officer in the jaw, and a battle began which ended when the youth was beaten virtually insensible.

MAN FROM BOSTON HELD IN MAINE DEATH CASE

Albert Doak, a woodsman sent from Boston to a Lincoln, N. H., lumber camp, was arrested by Lincoln police today in connection with the murder of David Cheney of St. Johnsbury, Vt., whose body was found under a bridge at Durham, Me., Jan. 29. Lincoln officers arrested Doak because his appearance corresponds with that of Archie L. Hallen, alias George Lambey of Lewiston, Me., alleged slayer of Cheney. Doak went to the camp with a crew from a Boston lumber agency a few weeks ago.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look to your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 35c.

Explosion Victim

TWO BURNED BY EUPLOSION OF GAS METER

Rudolph Carfi, pictured above, made a serious mistake when he monkeyed with a refractory gas meter. Being only an amateur machinist, Carfi did not realize what he was doing until there was a blinding flash and an explosion. Carfi is in the hospital.

As a result of an amateur attempt to repair a defective quarter gas meter, Mrs. Helen Cruff, of No. 3 Bartlett terrace, Roxbury, and Rudolph J. Carfi, eighteen years old, of No. 6 Bartlett terrace, an in City Hospital.

Mrs. Cruff, who is a widow, forty-seven years old, found the gas meter did not work properly and asked young Carfi in to help her remedy the trouble. They effected what they considered repairs and then dropped a quarter in the slot.

There was a blinding flash and explosion the flames igniting the clothing of Mrs. Cruff. In extinguishing the flames Carfi was burned on face, hands and body. They were taken to the hospital in a police ambulance.

MEDFORD GIRL ACTS ON STORY IN AMERICAN

Bobby McFarland will be able to fill his little lungs with fresh air once more—so will Jimmy.

Mrs. Helen Thompson of No. 119 George street, Medford, has attended to that.

Mrs. Thompson read in yesterday's Boston Evening American that some heartless person had stolen Bobby's perambulator while Bobby was being treated at the City Hospital and that he and his brother would have to spend whole days in the house.

She immediately communicated with this paper and said that she had a carriage which the kiddies could have.

So Bobby and Jimmie are all set.

When Mrs. McFarland was told the happy news tears filled her eyes. "Oh, how kind," she said. "I hardly expected anything so wonderful. I couldn't afford to get another and I didn't know what my babies were going to do."

Mrs. Thompson's kindness has brought happiness to the little home where a wide eyed baby will once more be able to sit outside in the sunshine.

8 TAXI DRIVERS FINED, EMPLOYERS WARNERD

Eight taxicab drivers were fined $5 each today by Judge Parmenter when charged with operating uncovered cabs. The charges were brought by Deputy Superintendent Thomas Good and Special Officers William Donaghue and John Crossen.

It was alleged the Premier Company employing them has a permit to operate only fifty cabs in Boston, but that with Chelsea and other places as their home stands, they really have 113 of their cabs on the city streets.

Judge Parmenter continued the case of the cab company for three weeks, with the warning that within that time it mus tremedy he problem condition or be dealt with in court.

R. I. COURT AFFIRMS MURDER CONVICTION

Providence, Feb. 12.—Richard Brady, convicted by a jury of murder in the second degree for shooting his wife, Delia Brady, at their home in Richmond last May, was denied a new trial by the Superior Court today.

The court held that there was ample testimony to support the finding of the jury. Contentions that the hearing of the foreman of the jury was affected were not supported by affidavits.

RHODE ISLAND STATE POLICE BILL OFFERED

Providence, Feb. 12.—A bill providing for the establishment of a motorized State police force was introduced in the Senate by Senator Arthur A. Sherman of Portsmouth, and referred to the finance committee. An identical bill was presented in the House by Representative Rawlings of Richmond, and sent to the finance committee.

The Strayer-Sisson bill, relating to the management and support of the public schools of Providence, was passed unanimously in the Senate. The measure has been the subject of a prolonged fight, both in the City Council of Providence and in the State House.

DAIL EIREANN BANS DIVORCE IN IRELAND

Dublin, Feb. 12.—The Dail Eireann pronounced against divorce with the right of remarriage, when, with only a few dissenting votes, it adopted a resolution proposed by President Cosgrove.

Mr. Cosgrove asserted that the Irish courts never had the power to grant a divorce with the right of remarriage. He asked the Dail Eireann not to grant such facilities, basing his case on the sacramental character of the marriage bond and its influence on the social life of a community.

50,000 ATTEND POPE'S THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Rome, Feb. 12 (I.N.S.).—Fifty thousand members of the Catholic faith were admitted to St. Peter's today where the third anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius was celebrated. It was the first time the celebration was not held in the Sistine Chapel. The public was admitted after high mass had been celebrated by Cardinal Locatelli, who was the first to receive the red hat from the present Pope. Special seats were reserved for royalty.

CONGRESSMEN WANT TO FIX OWN RENTS

Norman Hapgood Sees "Bolshevik" Tendencies in Pending Housing Bill

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Washington, Feb. 12 (I. N. S.)—When a congressman is touched in his own comfort the situation is serious. The housing conditions in this district are affected by a rent bill which is to be voted on in a few days, and that bill goes deep into questions of public and private rights.

The bill extends the public control over rents, initiated in war time, two years longer. A similar fight has been going on in New York City and other parts of the United States. The housing problem is one of the most pressing in various other countries, including Great Britain and parts of Russia. It is occupying the attention of even so pioneer a country as Australia.

There is no question more interesting to the world at present than how far the individual is to be let alone and how far he is to be tied into conformity with the interests of the community. The individual in this case is the landlord. The community is the city in which live the members of Congress and the thousands of employes of the Federal government.

CONGRESS IS CHAMPING.

The right of the community to regulate housing conditions in war time was upheld by the Supreme Court, but now Congress, chomping at the bit and threatening to plunge into the dark and unexplored caves of Bolshevism, wants to regulate them even in time of peace. But a good deal of sleep is being lost by those who view with alarm the evident tendency of the world to go to the devil by accepting new principles.

In the contest President Coolidge is being quoted on both sides. Apparently he has said at least a few kind words for the bill, which ought to show that if it is passed it will not endanger the first principles of social life.

NATION'S "HAPPY HOME."

Congress, knowing what a hazardous enterprise it had undertaken, drew this bill in a peculiar form. It included in the bill itself its reasons for thinking it constitutional.

In plain language, this explanation is that the District of Columbia belongs to Congress and the government and was created for the sole purpose of giving to said government a happy home. Therefore, if Congress wishes to Bolshevize this particular spot it does not follow that States or cities would have the same right.

NOME'S DIPHTHERIA QUARANTINE NEAR END

FORD RAILROAD PROFIT NEARLY EQUALS COST

New York, Feb. 12.—For thirty years the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad limped along from one receivership to another.

When Henry Ford paid 60 cents on a dollar for the income bonds, $4 a share for the preferred stock and $2 a share on the common stock in July, 1920, the railroad fraternity agreed he had paid too much.

The figures for the year 1924 have just been made public. They showed that in the past two years the automobile manufacturer had made his investment of $5,000,000 of 1920 pay him $4,701,853.

His railroad experience had been nil before 1920. The figures for 1924 show that his property earned $2,414,859, or almost one-half of what it cost him three and one-half years before.

The most careful students of the report failed to find in it any evidence that Mr. Ford had scrimped on the property to achieve this result.

On the other hand, there was every reason to believe he had lived up to the promise he had made when he took charge of it that he would put the profits back into the railroad.

SCHNECTADY MAN SHOT IN FIGHT OVER WOMAN

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 12—Anadalord Carcina, twenty-seven years old, is dying in Ellis Hospital with two bullets in his back, as a result of a shooting which police say was started in a quarrel over a woman. John Tenan is being held on an open charge.

GOVERNOR TO GET BIGGEST VALENTINE

Don't tell this!

It's a deep, dark secret!

Governor Alvan T. Fuller is going to get a Valentine!

And it's going to be the biggest Valentine he ever got.

People really aren't supposed to know who sends these mysterious messages, but just for once it won't be any harm to tell.

It's from the Western Union. There now! And the youngest messenger in the service, Francis Hafey, is going to deliver it. It's bigger than he is, but he doesn't mind.

More than that he is going to stand at the door of the State House all day Saturday and deliver all Governor Fuller's Valentines.

"And that'll be lots of fun," says Francis. "I hope it doesn't rain."

This modern Valentine Cupid is the second youngest in a family of twelve and lives at No. 232 Bennington street, East Boston. He was so anxious to get into the service that when he found that he was two pounds underweight he went and ate a lot of bananas and water and when he presented himself for the second time the scales just tipped right.

The Western Union is bringing the Valentine right up to date, by issuing a special form on which to print the usual messages.

J. P. SULLIVAN TO BE BURIED ON FRIDAY

Besides his mother he is survived by three brothers, Joseph F. secretary of the Board of Street Commissioners of Boston; Daniel A. in the employ of John H. Pray & Sons Company, and Frank J. Sullivan of the Jordan Marsh Company.

The funeral will take place Friday morning from the home. A solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9:45 o'clock. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

DECLARES STABBER KILLED MAN ABROAD

Lawrence, Feb. 12 (I.N.S.).—Guiseppe Contarino, forty-three, who was convicted in District Court today on a charge of stabbing Agatino Semia, forty, was accused by the latter of having murdered a man in Italy and escaping to this country. Semia was not seriously wounded. Judge Rowell apparently did not take Semia's charges of the murder seriously for he gave Contarino a suspended sentence of two months on the stabbing charge.

GUARDSMAN TO RECOVER FROM POISON

Lynn Soldier, A. W. O. L., and Fearing Arrest, Tries to Take Own Life

Preferring death to being jailed for failing to attend drills, William Durling, 20-year-old Lynn National Guardsman, endeavored to end his life by taking poison. He is at the Lynn Hospital and will recover.

Durling, whose home is at No. 25 Walnut street, had missed several drills of his company. He learned that his commanding officer had threatened arrest.

Believing the officers were searching for him, when as a matter of fact no action had been taken against him, Durling swallowed the poison while walking along Lawndale avenue, Saugus. He fell to the street unconscious and was removed to the Lynn Hospital by the Saugus police.

An application for an injunction against the DeLuxe Transportation Company, to restrain further operation of motor buses in alleged illegal competition with the Boston & Maine Railroad, between Springfield and Greenfield, was to be filed in the Supreme Judicial Court for Suffolk County by counsel for the railroad today.

The bill was directed against William G. Maher of Northampton and Edmund M. Maloney of Easthampton, owners of the De Luxe Transportation Company.

The complaint asserts that the railroad's "passenger revenue already has been seriously reduced by reason of this unlawful competition and if it is permitted to continue, the plaintiff will be compelled to curtail its passenger service between Springfield and Greenfield with resulting irreparable loss and damage both to itself and to the travelling public along the line."

It was added that, "the bus line between Springfield and Greenfield, moreover, is but one of numerous instances of similar unlawful competition to which the railroad is being subjected throughout the Commonwealth and the combined effect of such unlawful competition by the defendants and others, if permitted to continue, will cause the railroad such loss of revenue and general ailment of passenger service as impair its ability adequately to charge its public duties."

Besides asking for an injunction, Boston & Maine asks that damages be assessed against the owners of De Luxe Transportation Company for the continued operation of buses in illegal competition with the road, and that execution be had.

It is stated in the bill that the section & Maine's properties between Springfield and Greenfield that are involved in connection with the passenger service are valued at approximately $8,525,000, and that the equipment used in this service is approximately $1,400,000. Taxes amounting to $154,041, are paid to the cities and towns Springfield, Greenfield, West Springfield, Holyoke, Easthampton, Northampton, Hatfield, Whately and Deerfield.

The charge is made that the De Luxe Transportation Company is operating in violation of Chapter 159, Sections 45 and 46, of the General Laws, which forbids the operation of motor vehicles for carriage of passengers for hire by indiscriminately receiving and discharging passengers along the route, or between fixed or regular termini, without obtaining licenses and depositing bonds with each city and town.

DONHAM SPEECH READ TO DRY GOODS MEN

New York, Feb. 12.—Illness prevented the appearance of Wallace Donham, dean of the Harvard School of Business Administration, before the National Retail Dry Goods Association in fourteenth annual convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Donald David, Dea Donham's assistant, read his address to the 2,500 delegates present.

One of the principal addresses was delivered by Gordon K. Creighton of E. T. Slattery Company, Boston, before the controllers' congress.

E. D. Hussey, chairman of the Jordan-Marsh Company of Boston, gave the report of the board of managers.

Q. E. Klingman, personnel manager of Filene's, Boston, made the subject of his address "The Mechanics of Labor Turnover."

In his address, delivered by Donald David, Dean Donham declared business men must be prepared to take an increasingly important part in the leadership of their community life. The recognised professions now hold this position, he said, and the business men as a group are not yet ready to take over this leadership.

"As a group they lack an intelligent background, such as the men in the professions are forced to have," said the paper. "Comparatively few business men have a real appreciation of the cultural aspects that fit into our everyday existence."

DOCTOR SCOFFS AT U. S. PROBE OF FOX FARM

The silver fox industry run by Dr. Frank H. Gordon of Bangor, Me., is again under investigation by Federal authorities.

"Federal men have been working on our books for the past several weeks, but they will find everything O. K. and will find the silver fox raising business is entirely legitimate," declared the doctor when questioned by newspapermen today.

Since 1921, when he first started fox raising, Dr. Gordon has taken in approximately $3,000,000 from investors in all parts of the country.

As yet the fox farm conducted by Dr. Gordon has not sold a single pelt, although the doctor has paid dividends of as high as 75 per cent. to some of his investors.

"It will be at least five years more before we will start marketing pelts," the promoter says.

The millions taken in by the doctor were raised in the sale of foxes the investors bought for breeding purposes and which remain on the company's farms.

The scheme, as outlined by Dr. Gordon, is to sell a pair of foxes for $2,000. The fox company then guarantees 50 per cent. production, or at least one pup. The company also takes an option on the purchase of the pup at a price of $750. So far, the company has exercised this option in every instance, the $750 being paid the owner of the breeding pair, while the pups have been used in turn, for breeding purposes.

This system will continue for five years more ad then the number of foxes will be so large the company will begin selling the pelts.

At the present time, according to Dr. Gordon, the company has 2,600 black silver foxes on the several farms operated by the company.

HYDE PARK MAN GOES TO JAIL FOR 3 MONTHS

When Michael Belaski of Sunnyside street, Hyde Park, charged with disregarding the dry laws, told Judge Lowell in Federal Court today he "never saw a still in his life," U. S. Attorney Stone produced a warrant issued some time ago on Belaski's complaint that three stills were stolen from him. It is improbable that Belaski will see a still for three months at least, as Judge Lowell sent him to Plymouth jail for that period.

GENERAL SAYS WAR MADE U. S. GREAT

C. P. Summerall Upholds Military Policy; Sims Talks on Air Force

Worcester, Feb. 12.—Admiral William S. Sims, speaking at the Army and Navy dinner in the Hotel Bancroft here, declared that a "unified air force" separate from the army and navy would be of no use to the fleet in time of war.

The only way to handle the air forces is to have it train with the fleet continuously in order to give the pilots and squadron commanders sufficient training to enable them to attack successfully in war times on word from the commander, Admiral Sims declared.

Major General Charles P. Summerall, upholding the military policy of this country, declared that the present prosperity of the United States is largely the outcome of war.

"Today our territory has an estimated value of more than $20,000,000,000 and every part of it has been possessed through war or the power to make war," the general said.

CURTAILMENT NOT EXPECTED AT NAVY YARD

Captain Williams Believes Hub Will Not Be Hit by General Order

Captain Y. S. Williams, commanding the Charlestown Navy Yard, today declared that the local yard would probably escape the curtailment of repair work that is to go into effect in naval yards on both coasts.

"We have our assignment of ships and our monthly allotment and I believe there will not be any reduction in our regular allotment of monthly funds," Captain Williams said. "The Boston allotment of work is already smaller than that of the other yards and there is no need for a curtailment here.

Dempsey Tells of Willard Fight

Champion Reveals All the Details of Scene at Arena in Toledo

By JACK DEMPSEY
(As Told by W. B. Seabrook)
CHAPTER XVIII

ALMOST every kid knows the famous nursery tale of "Jack, the Giant Killer," and nearly every grown-up will recollect it, among his childhood thrills.

The universal popularity of that story may be one of the reasons why Jack Dempsey took such a tremendous hold on the popular imagination immediately after he became champion.

For Jack Dempsey won the championships by "killing" giants.

In a previous chapter, he said that the turning point of his career was the fight with Carl Morris, in Buffalo, in 1917. Carl Morris was a giant. He stood over six feet four in his stocking feet. The promoter at first refused to let the fight take place because of the disparity in size and weight. He was finally persuaded, and Dempsey laid the giant low.

Jess Willard was even more of a giant. Anybody who has ever seen him on the street knows that he was a giant in the literal Barnum circus style. His shoulders were higher than the heads of most big men. He towered over six and a half feet. He was a mountain of a man.

A NORMAL MAN.

Jack Dempsey was, and is, a man of normal size. He is only a shade over six feet tall, and weighs continually less than 200 pounds, sometimes as little as 190. And Jack says:

"My size was against me, because when I was coming on the best heavyweights were all big men, and people couldn't believe that a guy like me would have a chance.

"Before the Morris fight Doc Kearns and I were the only two people who thought I might ever be champion. After that fight there were two more who believed it right away, and they made a lot of noise about it.

"One was Charlie Murray, who wrote a sport column as well as promoted fights, and the other was Damon Runyon. Corbett was running a sport column, and he began boosting me, too.

"They paved the way for the big Toledo fight. They boosted me so strong that after we got in training I think they must have thrown a scare into the Willard camp, for pretty soon Willard and his crowd began to shoot out a line of stuff that seemed to me must have been cooked up to spoil my sleep.

A MAN-KILLER?

"Some of it was in the newspapers and some of it was the kind of stuff that doesn't get into newspapers. One grapevine story was that Willard had actually killed a man, innocently and by accident, of course, with a fairly struck blow of his gloved fist, and that when he went into the ring he had to be careful not to let out all his force and do it again.

"Then there was stuff about his knocking out his training partners, by accident, so fast that they had to send all over the country to get more. And then along came another story, in a lot of newspapers, signed by Willard himself, telling how hard he was going to get after me, saying that he would use the neck punch that knocked out Soldier Bancon.

"I had gotten a bad poke in the eye while training, and it had been bleeding a little at the time when somebody snapped me with a camera. Willard knew about that. And in his story, he said, if necessary, he was going to go after that eye, without mercy. Don't get the idea that I think Willard was a mean guy. This was all just smoke-screen stuff before the battle. When he did fight he fought as square a fight as any man living.

THE MEMORABLE FOURTH.

"I won't say I let all this worry me, for I don't think I did, but when the day of the fight came, and I went out to the big stadium in Toledo, I remembered it.

"Before I started for the ringside I knew that they were betting two to one on Willard. It was a Fourth of July, as hot as the hinges of h—l. On the way to the ringside, in the sun, I saw a big, new, shiny automobile with a sign on it that read: 'This car against $500 that Willard wins.'

"Do you know, I don't remember much to this very day of what the place looked like—a big, flat circle of wooden benches, yellow in the sun, and dotted with people, men with their coats off—and further back a canopy over where the women sat, and up above, in the glare, a balloon and a couple of airplanes. I remember mostly how hot it was.

"The crowd was all for Willard, mostly all. I pretended not to look at him, but believe me, I saw him. And he looked fine, sitting under a big, new, brown umbrella. All I had was an old, dirty one, spattered over with soft drink advertisements. Well that was all right, he was the champion. He was getting $100,000, and I was getting $27,000.

"It's funny what things you remember at a time like that. I tried not to look much at the crowd, but Tad, the cartoonist, was down in the front row, and he gave me a grin and a wink. If he happens to read this, I thank him for it now. Damon Runyon and his New York gang were there, and they were betting on me and they believed I was going to win, and that's what his wink meant.

Jim Corbett, who saw in Jack Dempsey the man who could conquer Willard.

A HUMAN MOUNTAIN.

"And right after that, there's another curious thing that I remember. I had my head ducked, sitting in my corner, pretending to notice nothing, but my eyes were slanted so that I could look at Willard a little bit and sort of take his measure. He was in good shape, and he looked even bigger to me than they said.

He was solid, he had trained. But then I spied something. He had his hand on his stomach, natural enough, but all of a sudden he shifted and moved his hand—and I noticed that his stomach sagged the least little bit.

"It's small things like that you remember, if you're really going to tell the truth about it. And for the first time that day, I felt absolutely all right. It wouldn't be true to say that before it, I lacked confidence. But now I had the feeling that Mr. Willard was my meat.

"If you were there, you remember that he landed the first blow, a left to the face. It didn't hurt. People have written a lot about my smash to his jaw that came a little later—a right cross, that knocked him down the first time. But that isn't the blow I remember the best. What I remember is the first one that landed solid on his body. I think I told you about it before. He didn't fall, but he shook and sagged like a tree with the axe at its roots, and I knew I had him.

THE TOWEL OF DEFEAT.

"After that, it was just fight. I could knock him down, but my job was to make him stay down, and I forgot all about the world championship and the money and the crowd, and even Doc Kearns. I heard a kind of roaring, but it seemed a long way off, and it had nothing to do with me.

"The first time I thought anything more about the world championship was after Walter Monahan had tossed Willard's towel into the ring, and old Willard got up and came over to my corner, and tried to smile, and shook hands.

"I hope I'll remember that when I get mine. Only I think I'll be on my back smiling at the angels instead of at the fellow who has licked me. Say, I'm sorry I said that. I don't mean it as a dirty crack at Willard. He fought a game fight until he couldn't fight any more. All I mean is that I hope when I do get mine, it will be a cold knockout.

"Well, it took me several days to get it through my head that I was champion of the world. Not through my head exactly, either. Of course, I knew it. But I didn't feel it. It came gradually from the different way everybody around me treated me. That's one of the greatest feelings in the world. You were nobody. And then you got to be somebody. And it seems like a sort of a miracle. And it's mighty sweet."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

In the next chapter Jack Dempsey tells of "Other world champions I have met," but he doesn't mean prize fighters. An extraordinary conversation with the late Woodrow Wilson—a visit to President Coolidge in the White House—a golf game with the late President Harding—teaching Galli-Curci to box.

STEEL PRODUCTION TO DOUBLE IN 1925

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Night and day shifts, overtime employment and orders that are taxing the capacity of the mills mean a production of 450,000 to 500,000 tons of rail steel reinforcing bars in 1925. This is the forecast just made by the Rail Products Association. Production is expected to double the tonnage in 1924.

It is believed that save for the "freak" period immediately following the war, it will be the highwater period of the industry.

TRAFFIC RULES ALMOST NIP ROMANCE

Taxi With Bride Has to Roll on as Aged Groom Sought License to Wed

The next time romance enters the life of Silas N. Sleeper, sixty-nine-year-old resident of Rockland, Me., he will keep the lady of his choice closely in tow as he files his marriage intentions.

Silas learned his lesson when he entered City Hall to file his intentions and left his seventy-five-year-old fiancee, Mrs. Elsie L. Eagleston of Winterport, Me., in a taxicab in front of the City Hall.

SHOWED UP IN 2 HOURS.

When Silas completed his business with the marriage license clerk he returned to Court street to find his fiancee and the taxicab gone.

Heartbroken, Silas cruised about the streets for two hours, peering into every parked taxicab he could find. Finally he decided to return to the steps of City Hall and await developments. He had scarcely arrived there when the taxicab with the bride-to-be in it, rolled by.

FORCED TO MOVE.

Silas was so overjoyed at recovering his seventy-five-year-old sweetheart that he paid the two-hour taxicab charges without protest.

Traffic officers had forced the taxicab driver to keep moving and refused to allow him to park in Court street to await the return of the elderly lover.

He socked his dough on Hard Guess, but the pig failed to shove his snoot inside the pay off line, which is unusual for Moe's dope horse. THE FIGHTING HEART

Joe Sullivan, the Boston College sprinter, must be a firm believer in that old adage, "a faint heart ne'er won fair lady." After running thirteen forty-yard dashes last Saturday, Joe was so disgusted with his efforts that he set out to win the New England A. A. U. 100-yard championship and finally was rewarded with real victory. He finished second to Al Miller of Harvard in the 40-yard New England championship at the Mohawkboy games in the afternoon, second in the K. of C. 40-yard dash at night and was first among the brother Knights over the same distance. The other forty-yard races were done in the heats.

Joe has that ... positive pep that makes good athletes and good citizens.

We are inclined to agree with Ban Johnson that Spring games between World's Series contestants of the previous Fall cheapens the big baseball classic. It's all a money proposition anyway and the Giants and Senators are not so poverty-stricken that they have to resort to such measures.

GOTCH'S SON ON MAT

It may be many years before we see another Gotch on the wrestling mat. A visitor from Winnipeg yesterday informed us that the son of Frank Gotch, the greatest grappler America ever produced, has taken to the mat game at the early age of twelve and is proving quite proficient. This gentleman told us that Emil Clark, former manager of Gotch, Sr., is now promoting boxing and wrestling at Winnipeg.

Another son who is proving as sensational as his father in sport-dom is Bobby Walthour, Jr. Young Walthour has turned out to be one of the leading six-day riders. Earlier in the winter he proved the kid of the New York grind and at the present time he is the sensation of the Chicago six-day race. After being lapped by the Windy City team of Keckler and Stockholm, Walthour and his partner worked their way back on even terms with the leaders.

DEMPSEY'S WISE ONE

Jack Dempsey pulled a funny one at Los Angeles the other night when he appeared in the ring previous to the Kid Kaplan-Bud Ridley bout. When the applauding had died down, one of the wits yelled: "Say, Jack, when are ya goin' ter quit fighting?"

Looking toward Estelle Taylor his bride of a few days, he replied:

"I guess I am I going to quit? Why, I haven't started yet."

Before the outdoor season commences a schedule for City High and District High League matches will be completed by the Physical Education Department.

BOGASH TO BOX WILSON IF HE BEATS TIGER

Louis Bogash, the Bridgeport lightweight, the most colorful middleweight in the game, in addition to being the most stubborn opponent of the ... Flowers, Atlanta Tornado, has been signed to face during his return to Gotham, will clash with Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion of the world, in this city, March 20, if he beats the colored sensation at Mechanics Building next Monday night.

Flowers and Wilson already are matched for this city on that date, but a defeat at the time for Flowers will mean that the Bridgeport middleweight will appear in the three-rounder before Hub fans. The decision was made by the Commercial Club yesterday.

Flowers, who remains the greatest box office attraction in the game in spite of his knockout at the hands of Jack Delaney, is continuing his mad whirl through the ranks of the middleweight ... knocking out all opponents.

Since failing victim to Delaney, Flowers has proved without the least doubt that he is a spectacular ringman. He has won his last four fights by the knockout route. Fans will recall when he came here and forced Tommy Robson, stubborn Malden man, to quit in the eighth round. Robson never had been stopped until Flowers dented his record.

Jack Delaney, Brockton fistic ... three times ... Flowers, was a Jamaica Kid went down in the tenth ... Flowers to mark the end of ... Moore, the Rock of Gibraltar, ... their fight.

A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

START THE STORY HERE TODAY

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora, at seventeen, fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew was killed in an auto accident. Nora met Maxwell Reed, who made love to her. Margaret died and Nora was left alone. She plunged into a fast set of flappers. Dane upbraided her for her association with Max.

Bobbie and His Pa

By William F. Kirk

We Smiths was sitting in the parlor, listening to the terrible storms which we had in the last year, sed Ma to my dad last night.

Oh, Mother Nater, sed Pa, she is a stormy cuss like all of the fare sects, sed Pa. Wherever you see one of the fare sects you always have a storm, sed Pa.

How's that, sed Ma. But that is just like a man, sed Ma.

It is not silly at all, sed Pa. All the great wars of history was nothing but a kind of storms, sed Pa, & who started them if it wasent wimmen? sed Pa.

Men started them, sed Ma. Selfish proud, greedy men.

No, sed Pa. Wimmen was back of them. This morning, for instans, sed Pa, I was walking down the street & I saw two littel shavers going to it hammer & tongs, sed Pa. They cuddent of been over ten years old, Pa sed. I pulled them apart & asked them why they was fiteing & one of them sed the other kid stole his gurl. I told him he was lucky, sed Pa, but kids nowndays dont listen to thare elders no more, sed Pa. There is always a free fight summwares in the back ground, wife, sed Pa, when war is going on.

If it were not for wimmen, sed Ma, thare wud be nothing but butchery & bludshed on this plannit, sed Ma. Wimmen keep men from being rank savidges, sed Ma.

We will not waste time argueing about it, sed Pa. You asked me what I was going to & I sed Mother Nater & I would settle it, sed Pa.

Do you think you can get me to stop talking about the subjeck in that manner? sed Ma.

It wud be hard to git you to stop talking about any subjeck in any manner, sed Pa. But I am thru talking, sed Pa.

Bobbie, sed Pa, cum here this minit.

Then I knowed thare was going to be a other storm, but I had to take my meddi-sin so I went over ware Pa was setting & he took off his slipper & then he began to laff & sed Ha, Ha, Bobbie, I bet you thot war was dec-clared, sed Pa. I will not use this slipper on you this time, Bobbie, sed Pa, if you will promis not to talk sassy to me ever agegen.

I wil promis, I sed very quick. I will promis with all my hart.

DAILY SHORT STORY

FORGOTTEN MEMORIES

By Jack Woodford

The club was very quiet. The reason to pass the time was a dull one. A few men, a large window reading the paper, while Hendrix, the psychologist, sat a few feet away trying to read a magazine.

As dusk stole over the world outside, and a soft hush settled gradually on the electric lights, and both the judges and the psychologist, with one accord, laid down the paper they had been reading, Hendrix edged his chair over near that of the judge, and the judge looked up smilingly.

Subconscious Bias.

"I was reading an article that," said Hendrix with a faint smile 'glad I could finish it before this artificial light was turned on. You know of course what 'subconscious bias' is. Well, I was reading of an interesting case in point I was."

Hendrix let his voice trail off. The judge was looking out of the window, apparently not listening to him, and a queer little smile played around the corners of his mouth. In a moment he looked up almost guiltily to find the eyes of the psychologist upon him.

"Come now, Bronson, you thought of something when I mentioned 'subconscious bias,' don't hold out on me."

Bronson smiled more broadly, then stooped to frown and light a cigar. He glanced about the room observed that it was vacant, and leaned over toward his friend in whom he had "subconscious bias—buried, half memories—what pernicious things they are sometimes, especially so in the case of one in my position. You remember the Halsey case, of course?"

Hendrix nodded. There were few in town who had not heard of the Halsey case, and Hendrix particularly had followed it because of the interesting psychological twists; an apparently wholly illogical and ridiculous attempt on the part of a notorious blackmailer to sue a large metropolitan newspaper which had succeeded by some strange trave[illegible] a hundred thousand dollar verdict for the plaintiff.

Inside Story.

"I've often wanted to get the inside story of that strange verdict," nodded Hendrix. "It seemed to me incredible at the time that you should have permitted that young attorney to nick the Mercury for a hundred thousand on the strength of such a nebulous showing as he made."

Bronson nodded slowly and pursed his lips. He leaned back in his chair and puffed reflectively for a time.

"You wil remember that the case was, originally, set for trial in another court up state, and the plaintiff applied for and obtained a change of venue, which brought the cause before me in my court. This was the first strange move, which no one seemed able to understand; even I, at the time, was at a loss to explain it.

"Why young Halsey should have imagined that his blackmailing claim would have found more favor in my court room than in the courtroom up state was indeed a mystery to me when the matter was put upon my calender." Bronson stopped, to chuckle softly, and then relapsed into a harsh frown, as though to distrust himself for his levity.

"Well sir, the minute that I found young Halsey before me with the opposing counsel for the newspapers facing him, I became like a man possessed. A perfect fever of hate ran through my veins at the opening arguments of the paper's counsel. I caught myself, time and time again, leaning forward, aching to reach out and shake him. Time and time again I brought myself up with sharp mental rebukes.

Scowl at Him

"The first hour's arguments were torture to me. I seemed as though each time that Halsey's counsel would open his lips, I would lean forward, swiftly, and drink in his words, my facial expression, apparently—at least those who were present told me so afterward—indicative of the fact that I thought his arguments well chosen and weighty, when, as a matter of fact, they were ridiculous, utterly ridiculous—and all the time, young Halsey sat and eyed me with that peculiar, quizzical smile of his which the newspaper men all took a hand at describing.

When the paper's counsel would step up with rebutal, I would scowl at him, positively scowl—my own wife was present during one session, and she says that there was no question about it—I did actually scowl.

You can imagine the effect upon the jury of such an attitude by the judge. Many a case is made or marred by the expression, the air, the implied viewpoint of the presiding jurist, as you, as a practical psychologist, well knew." Hendrix nodded silently.

"It is unfortunately true, and yet, the saving feature has always been in the fact that the average judge, after a little experience upon the bench, learns to so control his emotions and outward expression of them so that it is well nigh impossible for the average juror to gather what the judge's unexpressed attitude is."

"Right," agreed Bronson, nodding, "and I had prided myself, previous to that time, on the fact that I had acquired a fairly efficient, what you might call 'poker face.'"

He case dragged on interminably. Other jurists have since told us that time and time again I had the opportunity where, with every justification, legally, I could have thrown the case out of court for lack of evidence. And yet I did not. I consciously held it in court, and, just as consciously tried to force myself to view the testimony of both sides calmly and impartially."

"At night, after a day in court, I would go home and view proceedings mentally. It was as plain to me, at such times, as it was to others, that I was biased—and yet I could think of no reason whatsoever for my strange attitude. I knew, and was fully conscious that I was influencing the jury in favor of the plaintiff, although I also knew perfectly well that the plaintiff was a charlatan with no vestige of a clean case, and ought to be jailed for blackmail instead of awarded a verdict.

Instructing Jury

"Finally came the day when I was to instruct the jury. Today, looking at the typewritten words which I dictated to those twelve good men and true, I can see no slightest tinge of bias in them, as they lie there cold upon the paper. But friends of mine have told me that I managed to almost completely reverse the meaning of the words by the manner in which I spoke them—you of course can understand how easily that is done. Well, you know the rest of it, the jury a unanimous verdict, rendered almost immediately after they retired to deliberate, awarding young Halsey the full amount of the damages he claimed.

"When it was too late to do anything about it young Halsey came and told me the secret of the thing with sardonic glee. The explanation was so simple as to be almost laughable. I, of course, during my college days, took advantage of an occasion one night to join my fellows in a little spree. It is regrettable but true that I got disgustingly intoxicated and though lively enough throughout the horrible evening, was unable to remember anything that I said or did during that time.

"It happened that the Mercury at that time, had published a most sarcastic review of a paper I had written, and which had been published in the school organ—they, in some way had gotten hold of it, and as it illustrated some point they were trying to make a stand against at that time, they jumped all over it. I had read the review the day before the night of the student spree, and had been merely mildly amused.

"But, it seems, that as soon as I became intoxicated, I began to heap the most violent abuse upon the newspaper for its trenchant article; threaten me in fact, to get even for it if it took me a life time.

"This I learned from young Halsey after the consummation of the case. He came and told me deliberately—just for the fun of it—he is that sort. You see, his father told him the story; his father was with us the night of the spree. You psychologists publish too much intimate stuff nowadays anyway. A little psychological knowledge is a dangerous weapon in the hands of an unscrupulous man."

Hendrix laughed shortly and leaned back to puff reflectively and muse in silence.

MEDBURY SAYS

By John P. Medbury

TODAY is February 12th, the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, a great man who used to live in a log cabin and walk miles for his books.

HE was so poor he couldn't even afford a pair of skates to go after them.

HE read all the magazines and while they didn't contain any corpuses for him to clip he became a success anyway.

HE was handicapped at the start because his mother and father forgot to tell him that some day he might become President.

HIS parents didn't discover that they had neglected to tell him until they read of his election.

IN those days people had to get their news by mail as they didn't have any inconveniences such as radios and cross-word puzzles.

ONE of the first things Lincoln did was to free the slaves and give the Klu Klux Klan an idea.

WHEN Lincoln set the negroes free he had no idea that he was going to make sheets so popular.

LINCOLN owed a lot of success to his heavy beard. Charlie Hughes tried the same thing a few years ago, but his whiskers weren't heavy enough.

AND lately, presidential candidates have had more success with smooth shaven faces.

IT seems to be easier to get into the White House nowadays if you haven't got a mustache.

IN Lincoln's time there weren't so many barbers to vote against him.

BUT in this day and age with so many women crowding the barber chairs, a homerical artist can afford to vote for whoever he feels like.

LINCOLN was not only a big man mentally, he was a big man physically. In height he was a —— less than two stories shorter than the Woolworth building.

PEOPLE who knew him claimed that he had to take an elevator to put his necktie on.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN is the ideal of millions of Americans. And thousands of men who have failed to become President of the United States claim that it is because they never lived in a log cabin and that every time they wanted to read the public library was closed.

THE publishers of the book of etiquette have sold so many of their volumes to farm houses that the farmers are getting to be polite to the cattle.

SINCE reading the book, one rancher always says "Excuse me" every time he accidentally steps on a cow.

AND he's such a gentleman that he never milks them without taking his hat off.

HE wouldn't think of going into the hen-house unless he knocked.

ANOTHER farmer even puts tuxedos on his scare-crows.

AND he makes his dogs and cats dress for dinner.

HE wouldn't think of calling a new cow by her first name.

HE waits until he knows her better.

THE book of etiquette has made such a gentleman out of him that he never goes around the barn in his shirt sleeves.

HE always puts his coat on so that the horses can't see that he wears suspenders.

WHEN leading a cow or mare down the street, he never fails to walk on the outside.

AND he tips his hat every time they meet some other cows.

HE has a fine foot shelf of books and reads twenty minutes a day so that he can converse with the parrot.

HE'S perfectly at ease and when he goes home for dinner at night he never orders chicken salad.

SHOW him any photograph at all and he can tell you right away what's wrong with the picture.

HE doesn't like plays or dramas, but he goes to the theatre in order to read the program and find out what the well dressed man is wearing.

HE even bought a saxophone so that he could be the life of the farm.

THE fact of the matter is he bought two saxophones. He wanted to become popular quicker than overnight.

SUPPRESSING THE CHILD

By Carolyn Lisberge
Lecturer and Writer on the Bringing Up of Children.

HIGH rents are making the problem of child-raising more and more difficult, especially in cities, where people are being forced to live in smaller and even smaller quarters.

I walked home from a meeting one day with a woman who had one boy, aged eleven. "Roger is healthy," she told me, "though pale and delicate. He is rather timid and shy."

As we went into her apartment she bade me follow her into the small cubicle used as a bedroom. There we found Roger doing somersaults on the bed.

"Get right off that bed," she screamed. "You're ruining the springs."

Off jumped the shame-faced lad —and uncertain where to turn. The rooms were filled with necessary furniture. There seemed no place for him to work off his surplus energy.

Now, I do not advocate using beds as athletic grounds. But I do suggest that a boy is more important than a bed.

If you have a son who has shown himself timid and too quiet, but whom you find attempting one form of exercise he is not afraid to try—such as a somersault—then wisdom surely tells you the time has come to provide some usable space for him.

If you seek to annihilate his muscular energy you will pretty surely have trouble with him now and later.

BEDTIME STORY

Why Mrs. Hedge Sparrow Was Surprised

By Foxy Grandpa.

I THOUGHT that Bunny was very much interested in the hedge surrounding the lawn of the country house where we were visiting in England.

At first I thought there might be a family of rabbits living there and that Bunny was calling on them regularly, because, as you know, rabbits love to dig their warrens under a hedge.

But I found out differently—he was not visiting his English cousins. He was not visiting any animals. He was calling regularly at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hedge Sparrow. For they had built a tidy little nest far in the entangled branches of the boxwood.

"So they are going to raise a family, Bunny?" I asked.

"Tell me about it, Bunny," said Sparrow has laid five beautiful pale blue eggs. And her husband is very proud of her."

"That's fine," said I.

"But do you know, Foxy Grandpa, one of these eggs looks strange to me. It is different from the others. I didn't like to speak about it—it's none of my business and, besides, they might be sensitive about it. But as sure as I have four feet that egg is not like the others."

A week passed. No news from the house of Hedge Sparrow. Then finally one bright, Spring morning, Bunny came hopping in to breakfast in a high state of excitement.

"The Hedge Sparrows' babies are here," cried Bunny joyfully.

"Tell me about it, Bunny, said I, putting down my paper.

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bunny, laying one paw on the table empathically. "One of those babies which was hatched out is no more a hedge sparrow than I am."

"You might think you were, the time you spend in the hedge," said Bobby.

"One of those birds is a cuckoo," said Bunny.

Bobby, giving me a wink.

Bunny raised his head scornfully and continued.

"Do you know. I think those cuckoos are the laziest birds in the whole world. Do you know that they lay eggs in other birds' nests and expect strange birds to have all the hard work of hatching them out and the responsibility of bringing up a baby?"

"Yes," I laughed. "And other birds from other nests will feed them, too."

"I may have lucky feet, but I always had to rustle for my food," said Bunny indignantly.

TELL THIS AT DINNER

A young boy who was a regular attendant at a certain public library was noticed by the librarian to always ask to see the same book, open it eagerly at exactly the same page, and then burst into a hearty roar of laughter which did not subside for some minutes.

The librarian had his curiosity aroused by this unusual conduct and determined to investigate the matter. He resolved that next time the little fellow came in he would creep up behind the boy and see what he was laughing at.

That very afternoon the boy came along, got the book, and went to a table. The librarian crept softly up behind him just as he had opened it at the usual place. The boy looked at the picture for a moment. It was that of a bull chasing a young negro.

"Golly!" said the boy under his breath, preliminary to his usual burst of laughter. "He ain't catched yet."

HAVE A SMILE WITH US

By Nat N. Dorman

A REPORT from the Anti-Saloon League states that there are less drunkards now than ever in the history of the country. Sure, once upon a time a fellow who drank got drunk; now the stuff kills him.

The philosophy handed down to us about the man who smiles, etc., may be good, but don't try it when standing before the bar of justice and a judge is about to pronounce sentence.

Since so many wives have taken up the cross-word puzzle many husbands are having the first peaceful evenings they've ever enjoyed.

A good liar ought to make a crackerjack golf player.

There is such a dearth of good jobs in Chicago, according to a report, that when a firm advertised for college men only several hundred mobbed the doors. Evidently a new breadline.

Success is a point of view. Take the daring sky writer who gets $300 a day for doing tail spins in the air.

UNCENSORED LETTERS

By Les Conklin

DEAR STOCKHOLDERS:

The company's annual meeting will be held here on Tuesday afternoon. Of course, this is a great inconvenience to all of us, but we have to do this much in return for the fat salaries we are getting. Bring a deck of cards, some dice and plenty of jack along with you, and I promise you that the meeting will be over in time for all of us to take in a good musical comedy.

Yours truly,
SHORT RIBS,
President, Iron Corset Co.

Dear Miss Fits:

I want you to attend our bridge party tomorrow, as you are the only one in the crowd that knows how to keep score. You will be a great help—I have arranged for you to play with three old maids who are just learning the game. Love,
ALICE BLUE.

Dear Cousin Mike:

Drop over to dinner Sunday if you can manage to drag yourself away. The wife has been taking cooking lessons, and I want to try her dishes out on you before inviting friends around. If the meal fits you slick I'll send you to a good doctor.

Your affectionate cousin,
JULIUS.

My dear Professor Alto:

My wife and I are throwing a swell musicale Saturday afternoon and I am wondering if you would be kind enough to give us a few vocal selections. I will be down in the cellar while you are singing, but the others claim to enjoy it, and I am willing to throw a few dollars your way so that we can get somewhere in society. Knock on the back door at 4 p. m. sharp.

Regards,
N. V. HICHE.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

What is opportunity?

Opportunities do not come; you have to go after them.

Opportunities are not made for you; you have to make them for yourself.

They do not fall into your lap; you have to reach out and grab them.

Opportunities do not come knocking at your door; you have to go out and hunt for them.

Opportunities do not stare you in the face; you have to be wide awake and keen-eyed, not sleepy-eyed, in order to see them.

Do not many of us regard opportunity as something to sit down and wait for, something that, like a stroke of lightning, hits some people and passes by others?

Is not this attitude responsible for so many of us failing to see, seize and capitalize opportunity?

We are receptive instead of being perceptive. We put our trust in luck instead of exercising pluck. We wait for something to happen instead of causing something to happen.

Just as the trained athlete can win a race against the untrained athlete, so the man who trains and fits himself to create opportunities wins over the man who doesn't fit and train himself.

* * *

Opportunities are bobbing up every day of the year in every part of the country.

Take this year of 1925.

Just think how many concerns will go out of business and how many new ones will be established—commercial failures exceed 20,000 a year.

Think of how many executives of corporations and other enterprises will die and how many successors will be chosen.

Think of how many well-paid men will be promoted and of how many other men will be selected to take their places.

Again, think of how many mergers will be organized between now and December 31, giving wider scope for exhibition of enterprise and superior intelligence on the part of those engineering the consolidations.

Think, too, of the great inventions and achievements awaited by the world, from pocket radio sets to apparatus for harnessing the tides for the service of mankind.

George Eastman once told me of how he paid a fortune to the bright fellow who conceived the idea of making it possible for Kodak owners to autograph each photograph as taken.

The world's activities have become so much broader, so much more diversified, that there is greater room this year than there ever was before for inventing all sorts of simple and complicated contrivances worth hundreds of thousands or even millions of dollars.

There are now many large companies that offer valuable prizes to employes who submit suggestions. A very long ago one manufacturing concern rewarded the winner of the first prize by promoting him to a much more responsible and better-paid position.

I know one young employe who won promotion by the simple expedient of always waiting around until all the principal executives left for the day. Time and again some executive would have occasion to want a letter from a file or a letter typed or some urgent message delivered after the employes had finished for the day, and so useful did this enterprising employe prove time after time that promotion was gladly given as a reward.

"A river is an opportunity to catch fish," and "a deposit of gold one hundred feet under the surface of the earth is an opportunity to dig," declares a proverb.

* * *

This is the idea that should take possession of everyone of us. We need to get it firmly into our heads that opportunity is the fruit of effort, or preparation, of striving. You must first provide yourself with a rod or line and the right kind of hook and the right kind of bait before you can hope to catch fish.

Opportunity might be spelled hopportunity.

3½ BILLIONS ARE LOST YEARLY BY CRIMES

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

"Last year," says A. C. Bedford, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of New York, "a total of around $2,750,000,000 was taken in holdups, burglaries and confidence games and another round total of $100,000,000 was stolen through forgeries. When you add the collateral cost of crime, its detection and punishment, we are struck with the appalling fact that the total bill last year equalled our national budget—$3,500,000,000. I am convinced that good citizenship cannot be forced upon people by more laws or more police. It must be the result of education and moral training which makes crime repugnant to the decent minded. The church can certainly take the lead in this kind of education."

"It is surprising the number of stockholders and trustees of estates holding Boston & Maine securities who are positively against the Loring plan of financial readjustment for the Boston & Maine," says N. L. Amster. "I sent out 1,200 circulars and have heard from about 300 of the larger stockholders, all endorsing the position I have taken and promising proxies in the event of my seeking representation on the board of directors.

"Altogether I will represent over 120,000 shares of the different classes of stock. To my mind a noteworthy development, which should impress Mr. Loring more than anything else is the fact that two Boston & Maine directors, Walter C. Baylies and Charles Sumner Cook, resigned. These directors felt as I did on the entire proposition of readjusting the company's financial structure."

An article at hand, telling about the consumption of American tobacco in Spain, reminds me of the experience of a Boston sports promoter, who visited Turkey some time ago. He decided he would like to remember the kind-hearted sporting editor of Boston upon his return, and purchased several cartons of cigarettes in the land of Mohammed.

At considerable inconvenience, he carted them through the various countries of Europe. On returning to the Hub, he handed the first carton proudly to one of the editors with the remark: "Heres are some real Turkish cigarettes!" It was opened and the packages were found to contain the U. S. revenue stamps, marked: "Manufactured in New York."

MASS. COTTON MILLS GAIN

Massachusetts Cotton Mills is one of the largest of the country's mill properties. It is capitalized for $5,000,000 and has 279,248 spindles and 7790 looms. For 1924 there was an operating loss of $596,000, including $175,000 of interest.

Massachusetts Cotton Mills has plants in Lowell, and in Georgia. The Southern mill accounts for about 40 per cent. of the total machinery. It is an interesting commentary on conditions, North and South, to know that omitting interest charges the company lost $421,000 divided in round figures into a $600,000 loss at the Lowell plant and a $200,000 profit at the Georgia mill.

This comparison cannot be sharply drawn because the output of the two plants does not entirely coincide, the southern mill running more to coarser goods. The Lowell mill was not able to average much better than 25 per cent. capacity through the year, a condition making for costly production.

By far the greatest part of the loss for the year may be traced to inventory depreciation. Like other cotton mills the company was obliged to weather a 10-cent decline in cotton during the year. Cotton has now apparently stabilized and the relation of the staple to the cloth market is much more favorable. Business with the company is better; in fact recent months have shown black ink figures.

TANNERS SEE GAIN IN SHOE PRODUCTION

Although there have been no very recent advances in leather or hides, prices are holding very firm all along the line and there is distinct possibility that higher prices will develop. The leather situation is fundamentally strong, due to the very firm raw material markets and the steady reduction in stocks of leather. While it is generally felt that there was some further reduction in stocks during January, it is unlikely that the decrease was as great as in December or November.

The expectation of a substantially greater volume of shoe business this year is based on the fact that production in 1924 was 37,884,116 pairs under that of 1923, a decrease of 10.7 per cent. and was considerably smaller than that of 1922. It is naturally anticipated that with indications of general prosperity shoe manufacturers will have to increase production schedules considerably to make up for deficiency in last year's output. Stocks in hands of dealers are regarded as small.

The following shows the shoe output for the past four years:

Year	Production in pairs
1924	313,230,157
1923	351,114,573
1922	327,876,458
1921	285,518,453

Recent advance in Central Leather preferred stock to the highest price it has attained since 1923, when it sold at 79¾, is based on the belief that the year 1925 is likely to witness a transformation in the company's earnings.

It is expected a fair profit will be reported for the first quarter of this year. At the moment the season is just between hay and grass, but the big sole leather company continues to do a reasonably good amount of business and is steadily shipping out leather on orders already on hand. New buying right now is a bit quiet, but after the 15th of this month it is expected to see new impetus. Manufacturers will be coming into the market for their Easter trade requirements.

Balks at Taxes as Bushes Scratch Family Ford

Marlborough, Ct., Feb. 12.—Scratches on the family flivver caused by untrimmed bushes along the narrow road leading to his home are argued by Jacob Rogers to be a good and sufficient reason for not paying his tax bill, amounting to $63.

Claiming that the damage to his automobile amounts to more than the taxes he owes the town, Rogers positively refuses to pay and says he is considering what action to take against the selectmen of Marlborough for not cutting the wild growth along the road through which he has to force his way to reach the village.

A message received from Dr. Stephen Wise, one of the principal speakers at the campaign banquet at the Hotel Somerset, February 22, brings these words:

"After decades of persecution and suffering after the war, which took from them a terrible toll of life and property, our brethren, economically ruined, are looking despairingly to us to assist them in their rehabilitation. We cannot turn a deaf ear to their cries of suffering and despair.

"We must take them out of the bread line permanently. We cannot refuse them now the last measure of relief."

NEW COACH IS DODGE BROS. PRIDE

This is the Dodge Brothers coach which was rated as one of the major attractions at the New York and Chicago Automobile Shows. It is now on display at the C. S. Stenshaw showrooms on Commonwealth avenue. The new car is notable, among other things, for its style and completeness and for its low price. It is a characteristic product of the great Dodge Brothers plant in Detroit and possesses every up-to-date feature.

The doors are exceptionally large, a most desirable quality in a coach, and permit easy entrance and exit for all passengers. The windows also are wide, affording a clear vision on all sides. The windshield is of the non-glare ventilating type and has a fixed visor.

The lines of the car are low and graceful and are set off to advantage by the lacquer finish in Dodge Brothers blue with a straw color stripe. Shroud and belt are black and the artillery wheels are blue. The car has balloon tires.

"There is every reason to believe that the demand for the coach will quickly reach large production," says C. S. Henshaw, Boston Dodge Brothers dealer. "The sturdy construction and smartness of the lines and interior appointments, not to mention the proved dependability of the Dodge Brothers standard chassis, combine to lead us to believe that the coach can be sold for the low price that the factory has put upon it."

FALL RIVER MAN SEEKS MISSING WIFE

Mrs. Raymond

When Anthony Raymond returned to his home at No. 199 Sprague street, Fall River, 10 days ago, he was met at the door by his two little babies, crying for their mother. A search failed to reveal his wife Marion, the police were notified, and now Raymond has called the Boston Evening American to aid him in his search. At a loss for a motive for her disappearance, Mrs. Raymond is about five feet, four inches in height, weighs about 225 pounds and is of medium complexion.

BROOKLINE DUTCH HOUSE HAS "CHINESE STUDIO"

The famous "Dutch House," built in Holland more than 200 years ago and brought to the Netherlands pavilion, Brookline, after it had served its purpose at the Chicago World's Fair, has become an artists' retreat. Julian Mortimer Cochrane, an artist, one of the purchasers, has transformed the towering garret into an oriental studio, gay and mysterious with orange and red hangings, Buddhas, mystic lights and paintings and mementoes of the ancient Chinese dynasties.

Boys Who Sleep in Dry-Goods Boxes

What Are Their Homes Like?

All but one of the men and women who filled the Council chamber in Haverhill's City Hall when the Council took up the question of a proposed curfew law, either spoke for the new ordinance or wished to be recorded that way.

The speakers represented the Chamber of Commerce, the Ministers' Association, the Federation of Churches, the Teachers' Association, various Parent-Teachers' clubs, community clubs, the Kiwanis, other welfare organizations.

They want the Haverhill fire-bells tolled at 9 o'clock every night, a signal to boys and girls under 15 to "put for home."

Dr. I. J. Clarke stressed the importance of sleep. Mr. Curran said most of the "trouble" the police experience is caused by boys from 11 to 16. Mr. Langton thought too much was said about the boys and not enough about the girls. More attention, HE thought, should be paid to "these girls who are running about the streets at night."

It must have taken some courage to answer for the "contrary minded," in a gathering almost unanimously in favor of the curfew, but apparently Mr. E. D. Bailey is a gentleman of spunk.

Mr. Bailey is the superintendent of the Haverhill Boys' Club, from which boys under 14 are sent home at 8:45 p. m., while older lads are permitted to remain until 10 o'clock. He KNOWS boys.

"Let us do nothing precipitate, here," urged the boss of the Boys' Club. "Let us be SURE of what we are doing. I know, from my experience among them, that there are boys in Haverhill who understand and who do not like the conditions which surround them at home.

"These boys have told me that they prefer any place else to their homes. I have tracked some of the younger boys from the Club along Washington street, and have seen them dart into alleys and take refuge in drygoods boxes.

"I found one such boy nestled in the hay or excelsior. Telling him to go home or the police would be after him, I routed him out.

"'PLEASE let me stay here, Mr. Bailey,' he pleaded, 'the box is clean and tLe hay is clean.'

"This board can enact a curfew law if it sees fit, but while there are boys who feel THAT way about their homes, it will take at least 100 policemen and perhaps a flying squadron to ENFORCE the ordinance, and even then the boys will keep them busy."

In the face of such a demand as was voiced before the City Council it is almost certain Haverhill will give the curfew law a trial.

But how about the homes to which boys of 12 and 13 years prefer an empty drygoods box?

Isn't there work to be done in that direction?

Before we blame the boy for being out on the street at night, let us find out WHY he is there.

It may not be altogether his fault, poor lad.

The Public Business

It Is the Public's Business

All business done in Washington is the people's business. There isn't any business done there, officially, that is the private property of any paid public employe, from the little page in the Senate to the President in the White House. Therefore, all information concerning affairs transacted at Washington, should be given to the people, that they may know their own business.

The people should know, on the highest authority, what the agencies are that oppose an adequate air craft defence program for the United States.

They should have complete information as to the destruction of the Battleship Washington. They know now that the battleship on which the people spent nearly thirty millions, and which we destroyed to oblige our friends in Europe and Asia, withstood the fire of the biggest guns on our battleships for days. What they want is an answer to this question.

Is it a fact that when men in our flying machines were permitted to get to work on that battleship, the big ship was sunk in about four minutes?

If that is true, the people ought to know it, and there ought not to be any Army secret. If the Secretary of the Navy or anybody else isn't willing to let the people have the information, the President should see that they get it.

President Coolidge

And the Oil and Steel Men

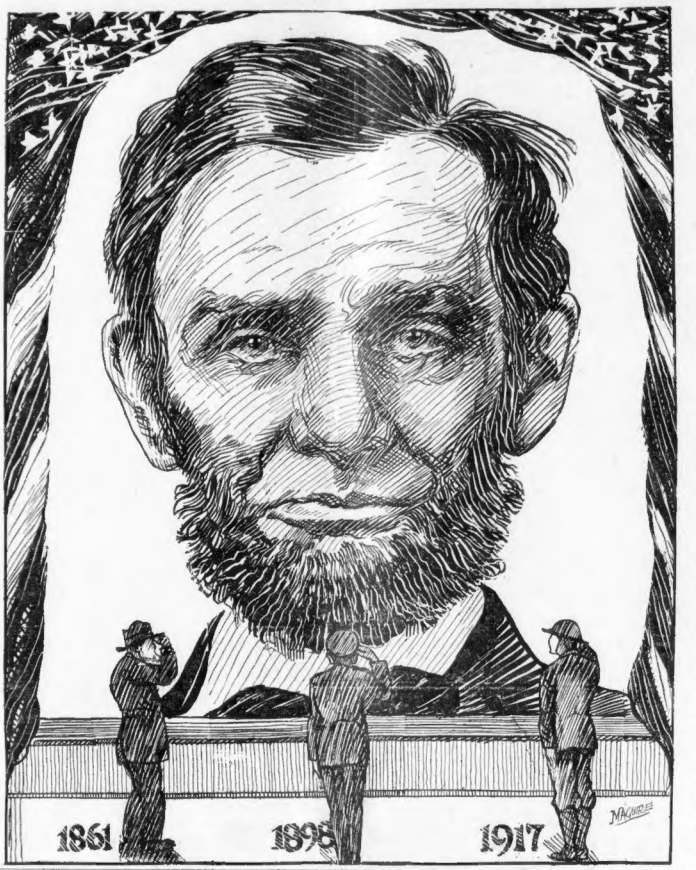
Some steel men and oil men hate every man in the army or navy that puts flying machines ahead of battleships. The steel men are wise for the moment. One forty-five-million-dollar battleship means more profit to them than all the flying machines this country is apt to build for some time.

The oil men are foolish. Such flocks of flying machines as this nation would soon develop, if the government did its duty, would use more gasoline and oil than all the battleships in the world put together.

The oil men and steel men, faithfully served by certain forces in the army and navy, are trying to get rid of Brigadier-General Mitchell, a real American fighter, a real FLIER, to punish him for telling the truth to Congress and the people about the aircraft situation.

The people of this country do not believe that President Coolidge will allow this kind of persecution to go through. They believe that he will protect such men as General Mitchell, and discipline those that, in underhand fashion, attack and seek to destroy them.

LINCOLN



A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOMETIMES, even in these days, a man will kiss a girl of his OWN accord, if she'll only keep him waiting long enough.

* * *

Removing all the illusion from love has the same effect as removing his hat from a bald-headed man.

Helen Rowland

It is easy to idealize a man under the rose-colored shades of courtship; but it's a real love when you can still see the halo around his head, in the cold dispassionate north-light of matrimony.

* * *

Somehow, the public announcement of his engagement always makes a man look foolish and self-conscious, as though somebody had handed him a baby to hold.

To some men, marriage is a strait-jacket which they wear with patience and resignation; others seem to slip out of it and into it again as carelessly and nonchalantly as though it were an old sweater.

Kisses are getting to be as numerous in a man's life as taxicabs on Tremont street—and like the taxis, they are getting cheaper and cheaper—and cheaper.

When two women go after a man at the same time, he is as helpless as a pedestrian between a trolley car and a taxicab. He merely closes his eyes, stands perfectly still, and waits for Fate—and the number—to overtake him.

Funny, how a man, who groans at the thought of wearing a hard-boiled shirt through a whole evening at his wife's party, can march for three consecutive hours in a gold braided uniform or a Shriner's fez without the slightest fatigue!

* * *

Whether it's because she can't GET him,or because she can't get RID of him, the Biggest Sorrow in a woman's life always weighs somewhere around a hundred and sixty pounds.

* * *

Nowadays, a widow often manages to make her mourning look more like an emblem of hope than like an emblem of grief.

Want Clothes Badly

Helping Hand Editor:

There is a family in Dorchester very much in need. The father has rheumatism and heart trouble and has not worked since last May. There are four children, girl ten, taking size 13 shoes; girl three, shoe 5, and two boys, one eight, shoe 12½, and baby, almost two, wearing 3½ or 4 shoe. They certainly need clothes. The boy cannot go to school, as he has no shoes. All the mother has after paying rent every week is three dollars, and that has to pay carfare to the hospital three or four times a week and buy milk for the baby. Please try and do something for this poor mother.

MRS. J. R. G.

Boy Could Help

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a widow with five children and would be so grateful if some kind reader could give my boy, sixteen, a job as an electrician's helper. He studied the electrical course a year and a half in high school. This would help me out so much.

MRS. E. D.

All Need Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I am greatly in need of a job. I have three children, girls thirteen and eleven and boy 2½. They need clothing and food. I can do any kind of mechanical work, sheet metal work, etc. I hope someone will help me out.

Scarcely Any Food

Helping Hand Editor:

I am the mother of six children, one girl eight and five boys, two, 3½, five, seven and ten. My children need warm clothes and shoes. The teacher does not let them out at recess, as they have no rubbers. I have no coal or warm things to cover us. My husband hasn't worked hardly any for three years. Our rent is way overdue, and I have scarcely any food in the house. I hope someone will help us out.

MRS. M. F. S.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Harvard Square Station

Editor Boston Evening American:

I have read with a great deal of interest your editorial relative to the Harvard Square Station. As Mayor I want to express to you my appreciation for your interest in this important matter. There have been one or two plans already presented by engineers and architects as a possible solution to this problem. I am taking the matter up with the Harvard Square Business Men's Association for more expert advice. They are very much interested with the rest of our citizens.

EDWARD W. QUINN,
Mayor of Cambridge.

R. R. Smoke Nuisance

Editor Boston Evening American:

I notice that bills looking to the electrification of steam railroads within the city limits of Boston have been turned down again at the State House with hardly a ripple of interest on either side. Anyone who lives near the tracks in the South End knows the great and almost unbearable nuisance the dense smoke from the engines causes. Aside from the depreciation of the real estate it is also a menace to health. Within my stay at a large apartment house alongside the New Haven tracks two doctors have ordered two different tenants living there to move or never expect to regain their health, already impaired.

"When plants can't live in the atmosphere of these rooms, how can humans expect to thrive?" asked one. It is time something was done.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

I HAVE not seen the tranquil sea a-wash on Southern sands, nor have I heard the melody it sings to sun drenched lands. I have not watched the ebb and flow of tides that ring the world, of waters where the great ships go, with splendid flags unfurled. But, oh! I know a little lake of such wondrous hue its beauty makes my eyelids ache, so sparkling and so blue. I have not captured high renown that rings across earth's way, a fame that travels up and down and waxes day by day. And never with the great and wise will Time my name enroll, with those of lofty destinies who reached their splendid goal. And, yet, what loss? For I have gained my only sought for prize, supremely proud that I attained some merit in your eyes.

PRIDE INCENTIVE TO CRIME

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IT is recognized that the chief characteristic of most criminals is that of pride.

A man is proud to be known as a leader in crime, proud of his thuggism, proud of his skill as a gunman.

It is a well-known fact that pride is one of the chief incentives to crime.

Newspaper publicity is sweet to the soul of the lawbreaker.

The trouble is that crime is egocentric in its character. All criminals are individualists. They are at war with society. At the same time they care more for the plaudits of society than they are willing to admit.

One of the worst punishments of a criminal who has achieved some celebrity is to tell him that you have never heard of him.

It follows from this that one of the best cures of crime is obscurity. The criminal feeds upon notoriety.

Even when he is hung it is some consolation to know that he is in the spotlight. He is in the centre of the stage and he rejoices that his passing is dramatic.

All religion is religion of the other fellow. Its object is to induce a man to have respect for the rights of others. Irreligion of any kind is egocentric. A man dwells upon his own importance. His chief complaint is that enough attention is not paid to him.

Everything should be done to bring the criminal to a realization of the importance of his fellow men, that he is to live for them and work for them, and not for himself.

POETRY WRITTEN ON ASTRONOMY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I WATCH with much interest the increasing number of verses published on the stars and other astronomical phenomena.

Astronomy, perhaps, offers a greater stimulus to the poetic imagination than any other science, yet it still awaits its singer, though now and again it has inspired a few immortal lines from some really great poet.

I have quoted some of these in former articles. But they are mere passing gleams, meteors streaming in a breathless moment across the mental heaven.

The great astronomical poem is still due—and it may never be written. But attempts to throw poetic glamor over thoughts suggested by the stars, moon, sun and other celestial objects and scenes, now appear with considerable frequency.

The results, however, are generally disappointing. Scientific statements cannot be made poetical by inverting the order of words, or pinning rhymes to them. I am a little entertained when I read that:

"We are dashing along in our snug, wee car,
Of granite and iron and gold
At eighteen miles a second,
Through autumn, summer and cold.

Our automobile is part of a train
That moves at the slower pace
Of a dozen miles a second
In an interstellar race,
A huge, and splendid machine is guide;
It lights the burnished band,
Saturn and Mars and six other cars
To the sweeps of Lyra-land."

But I cannot help perceiving that clever metaphors do not hold the soul of poetry, although the subject dealt with is one of the most sublime offerings of astronomy to the human spirit.

The following rather rocky lines have at least a poetic topic:

"From Solstice unto Solstice";
"From dipper's Archer of the Milky Way
To Twinkling Twins in starry Gemini
Our Sun climbs slowly northward day by day
Past stars that shine unseen in azure sky.
From Archer unto Capricornus, and Aquarius to coupled Pisces when
The month of March is reigning o'er the land
And nature, roused by Spring, awakes again.

From sear December until overdant June
Our Sun shines higher with each passing noon."

The most promising that I have happened to come upon are these verses, by William H. McEnrue, which I take in full from Popular Astronomy, in which I have also found the other lines, by other authors, that I have quoted in part:

"THE NORTHERN CROSS."

"When Winter comes, and bleak December's snow
Embalms the fragrant flowers of Summertime,
The Northern Cross still lingers, loath to go,
And decks the jeweled firmament sublime.
On Christmas Eve, when all the world is gay
And peace on earth makes human hearts beat high,
When sunset glow departs at close of day,
The Cross stands upright in the Western sky.
This symbol of our faith for ages past
Has marked the dying year on land and sea,
And may it shine resplendent when, at last,
The sable night descends for you and me.

Mr. McEnrue has made a living figure of the great Cross formed by the stars of Cygnus, and has caused it to linger before the mind's eye, heightened in interest by its symbolic connection with the season of the year when it "stands upright" at the coming of night, on the northwestern horizon.

I hope that the poets will continue to celebrate astronomy. The subject itself will lift their work to higher planes.

ONCE-OVERS

A "ONE-TRACK" MIND MAY BE THE MAIN LINE TO SUCCESS

You are very much upset because someone has said that you have a "one-track" mind.

Well, that is better than to have it said that your mind has no track at all, isn't it?

The very persons who are criticising you because you are attending strictly to what you consider your business would be the first ones to criticise if you do not make a success of your undertaking. Do not forget that when you find you are sensitive to that sort of criticism.

At the same time you want to remember that all work and no play is a bad thing for anyone, so do not let your straight line enthusiasm for any certain thing keep you from taking time to rest occasionally.

You are quite right in realizing that late hours and the sort of diversion that many persons take is more of a hindrance than it is a help.

The only way to make an absolute success of anything is to give it your entire attention while you are working at it.

If that is the sort of "one-track" mind that your companions are railing at, forget the criticism and get to the top.
